RESEARCH FINDINGS	12
Herbert claimed in his campaign announcement that he “decided to run because I was tired of watching those few people and organizations down in Austin silence the voices of us North Texans.” But Herbert is a personal injury trial attorney and is only running for his bottom line: “I have sat by for a long time when it comes to politics. This is my first foray into politics...every single session, us plaintiff attorneys hold our breath, hoping that we still have jobs by the end of this session... this horrible bill was going to go through that really would have affected my livelihood”.	13
Herbert’s biggest contributor is Manuel Green, a personal injury attorney who also runs MEG Health Care, a Texas consulting company that arranges spine surgery and other medical care for people injured in car crashes which faced scrutiny in a widening federal bribery investigation in 2022.	19
Herbert was asked on the Progress Texas podcast about a “trend” of figures like James Talarico and Jasmine Crockett “taking religion back from the Christian nationalist types who have weaponized religion for their own ends”. Herbert did not dispute the premise of the question, in fact he said he’s “thought about it a lot” and that “a lot of people have gone through what they’re now terming a deconstruction of their faith.” So... does Herbert stand with Pastor “God is nonbinary” Talarico?	28
Herbert: “am I a Christian just because I was raised Christian? And I think that you can change your environment, then you can change your beliefs. And so that's what I did. I changed my environment, and I went to California for law school.”	30
“I believe every small business should be able to afford to pay a living wage and full medical benefits for all Texas employees.” Maybe small businesses could pay their employees more if Herbert wasn’t busy suing them.	32

Herbert appears to have lied on his Dallas Morning News candidate questionnaire when he responded he had never been involved in a civil lawsuit. Herbert’s law firm (then a partnership Herbert & Eberstein) was sued by fellow trial attorney Amy Witherite in 2021. _____ 35

Texas Secretary of State records show Herbert failed to file a required annual report for his former law firm partnership and pay the $200 fee per partner, resulting in its status being terminated. _____ 62

Herbert responded in his Dallas Morning News candidate questionnaire that the political leader he most admires is Barak [sic] Obama... “he inspired me then and he still inspires me now.” _____ 65

Herbert “will fight to fully fund public schools and oppose policies that divert resources away from classrooms” according to his Dallas Morning News candidate questionnaire. Notably, Herbert does not mention any of this on his campaign website, instead focusing on teacher pay and omitting any mention of school choice. _____ 66

Herbert is endorsed by the Texas American Federation of Teachers. The group is currently suing the state for investigating teachers who celebrated the assassination of Charlie Kirk. _____ 70

Herbert wants to tie teacher pay to inflation and figure out how to pay for it later: “Let’s tie teachers’ pay to inflation, and then we’ll figure it out. You know how to, how to get that money and make it” _____ 73

Herbert called Trump’s Truth Social post targeting Iran “a war crime.” _____ 74

Herbert responded in his Dallas Morning News candidate questionnaire that “My top priorities are education, affordability, and workers’ rights.” _____ 75

Herbert is holding his “general election kickoff” with Rep. Ana Maria Ramos. _____ 76

“One of the most significant long-term challenges facing our district is the continued erosion of local control.” Does Herbert oppose legislation that penalized cities for reducing police funding? _____ 78

Herbert contributed $100 to democrat congressional candidate Dan Barrios. _____ 80

Herbert wants to expand Medicaid and expects small businesses to pay “full medical benefits for all Texas employees.” _____ 81

Herbert wants business owners to “pay a percentage of your wages that you pay your employees into the health system so that they can all get Medicaid.” _____ 84

Herbert wants to legislate an increase in the minimum wage to a “livable wage.” What’s the number? _____ 86

Herbert believes that “women should have the unequivocal right to make medical decisions for their own bodies.” Unequivocal. No restrictions whatsoever? _____ 87

Herbert has made election integrity a “women’s rights” issue. Herbert is against the SAVE Act – requiring proof of citizenship to vote. _____ 88

What happened to women’s rights? Herbert bragged that he didn’t have to pay his wife for working at his law firm. _____ 89

Herbert wants more restrictions on 2nd amendment rights but does not specify what that means beyond calling it “common-sense”. Herbert is endorsed by Moms Demand Action, the Bloomberg-backed gun grabbing group whose “common-sense” gun policies include red flag laws, restrictions on storage, banning assault weapons, restrictions on open carry, pressuring private businesses to restrict carry and sales, and opposing constitutional carry expansions. The group also wants to repeal Stand Your Ground Laws. _____ 91

Herbert: “I used to have a lot of rifles in a in a gun case, and I got rid of them all. It was just, it was too much. I didn't want to be even be in my home. And I don't go hunting anymore like I used to, so I got rid of them all.” _____ 98

While advocating for more restrictions on citizens’ right to protect themselves with firearms, Herbert stands with Soros-backed District Attorney John Creuzot. _____ 99

Herbert condemned ICE over the shooting of Renee Good on the day the initial video was released: “ICE claims self-defense, but the video tells a different story. She was attempting to flee, not threaten.” Herbert said nothing in the following days when additional videos provided more context and showed Good obstructing officers. Herbert even “liked” a comment calling for the abolishment of ICE. _____ 101

Herbert Law Group does not appear to be enrolled in E-Verify. _____ 106

Herbert wants more weed and claims “we've seen it work in other states like Colorado and New Mexico.” Herbert claims the alcohol lobby is responsible for keeping it illegal in Texas. “I want to legalize it for the tax revenue. I think it's a way to be able to fully fund our schools.” He says people don't campaign on it because "there's still an older generation that thinks that you're Willie Nelson, if you smoke pot." _____ 107

Does Herbert want boys in girls' sports? Men in women's bathrooms? Herbert says he will "oppose any legislation that infringes on the rights of the few, and promote equity and ensure that Texans of all backgrounds are treated with dignity and respect." _____ 109

Herbert is endorsed by Stonewall Democrats of Dallas – the group that wants to let men in women's bathrooms and allow gender transition of minors. _____ 110

Herbert celebrated the Marine Corps being "inclusive" and recounted the "amazing journey" of a man he served with that "transitioned when she got out, and then she went back in on active duty as a female. She was a male, whatever she was in, and then she transitioned back as a female." After "she" was later kicked out, Herbert said "I feel like we take these steps forward, and then two steps back, seeing what I saw today, talking about how we're going to do away with any, anything that has inclusiveness." _____ 116

Herbert on Trump supporters: "I'm just going to put on my Red Hat and go, you know, put up the flag in my front yard and not listen. And that's and that's the problem." _____ 118

All part of the job? Probably doesn't bode well for his behavior in Austin. A new employee was welcomed to the Herbert Law Group by her boss twerking on her and posting the video on the law firm's YouTube. _____ 120

Herbert on his law firm website: "Our method of dealing with our clients is what we described as Old School. We meet with all of our clients. We take our clients' calls – in fact most have our cell phone number!" Herbert on a podcast: "As a personal injury attorney...The longer you spend on a task, the more money we're losing... I'll be like, remember when I told you in your lit meeting this, well I don't remember if I told them that or not, but I know that I say the same thing in every meeting." _____ 121

Herbert: "I run a practice on small personal injury cases, mostly car wrecks. Some would call it a volume practice model. Some would say volume is bad. I say volume is great." _____ 124

Can these people just leave. Herbert is endorsed by Averie Bishop, the 2024 Democratic candidate for house district 112. Bishop is now an influencer who posted on March 2, 2026: "bringing back some socialism don't worry !...inhaling mamdani nyc air before flying back to my regularly scheduled deep red state to do my civic duty & flip Texas soon-ish" _____ 125

“I like to fight. I fought in the Marine Corps, and I fight for my clients now.” While Herbert has not claimed to be a combat veteran in his campaign for state representative, he seems to have no problems implying it to prospective clients. _____ 128

Herbert claims to be an advocate for Texas small businesses but is spending his campaign funds in China. _____ 129

Herbert supports expanding gambling. _____ 130

Herbert Law Firm took a PPP loan later forgiven for $44,276. _____ 131

Informational: Herbert Law Group was sued in 2023 by a medical provider alleging thousands of dollars in unpaid medical bills for its clients. An amended petition was subsequently filed naming Herbert Law Firm (Keith Herbert). _____ 132

CAMPAIGN WEBSITE

Zach has lived in District 112 for over a decade with his wife of 20 years and his four children. He is a business owner and active in his local chamber of commerce. Zach grew up in Dallas and East Texas, majored in Theology and Business Administration at Southern Nazarene University, and graduated from Pepperdine University School of Law in 2009.

After passing the Texas Bar, he joined the Marine Corps and became a Judge Advocate, or military lawyer. While in the Marines, Zach defended Marines and Sailors in the Military Court system. After his active duty service, Zach returned home and put down roots in District 112. He is passionate about being a voice for the voiceless, standing up to bullies, and leading with honor.

Since 2017, Zach has owned a personal injury law firm built on the principles of honor, honesty, and communication. His firm advocates for injured individuals against large corporations. The Richardson Chamber of Commerce recognized his firm as the Member Company of the Year for its support of Richardson Young Professionals, event participation, and overall enthusiasm.

At home, Zach makes it a point to never be too serious, believing that laughter and playfulness are key ingredients in family life. He truly values the moments he spends with each of his kids, often engaging in activities that allow him to connect with them on their level. When the day winds down, you might find Zach and his family snuggled up on the couch for family movie night.

HERBERT LAW GROUP

Zach Herbert went to Law School with a very general plan: to be a voice for those without one. He had no idea how that was going to turn out. So he tried out everything. Zach interned at an insurance defense firm, the Los Angeles DA's office, 20th Century Fox, a real estate litigation firm, and others. But it wasn't until he considered serving in the military that Zach decided he had found what he was going to do next. After graduating from Pepperdine University School of Law, Zach took and passed the Texas Bar and began training for Officer Candidate School. He was commissioned as an officer in the Marine Corps on March 26, 2010.

As a military lawyer or Judge Advocate, Zach was assigned to defend Marines and Sailors accused of crimes onboard Camp Lejeune, NC. Zach tried many jury trials and found his passion was for trial law. Upon leaving the military as a Captain, Zach continued to hone his trial skills for a large law firm in Dallas. He was accepted into the Trial Lawyers College founded by Gerry Spence in Dubois, Wyoming.

For three weeks, Zach worked on his trial skills with other lawyers from around the country. He came back and quickly made a name for himself as a tenacious and honorable trial lawyer in Dallas.

When Zach founded Herbert Law Group, he did so in order to focus on the three core values of Honesty, Honor, and Communication. He didn't want his law firm to look like any other law firm out there. He wanted his law firm to reflect not only who he is, but also who he strives to be every day, both in and out of the courtroom, both at home and in the office. You can see his effort in everything Herbert Law Group does, and through everyone that works here.

Zach decided to go back to school part-time to get his Masters in Business Administration while also running a law firm full-time. For almost 2 years, he flew to Pepperdine Graziadio School of Business every three weeks to take weekend classes. His tenacity and hard work paid off, and he earned his M.B.A. in 2019. Zach now uses what he learned in business school to streamline the services Herbert Law Group provides their clients and making sure each case gets top-notch service, with top-notch results.

Zach became Board Certified by the Texas Board of Legal Specialization in Personal Injury Trial Law. This distinction is earned by less than 2% of all attorneys in the State of Texas. It is a rigorous process that includes meticulous vetting and a 6 hour examination. A board certified attorney is extremely competent in their legal specialty, with demonstrated, proven experience

Zach lives in Richardson with his wife and kids. His free time is spent playing with his four children, or amateur woodworking, or Netflix binging. He enjoys the outdoors, loves to hunt, and cooks a mean ribeye steak.

Body

Attorney Zach Herbert, a Dallas Personal Injury Attorney at Eberstein & Witherite, LLP continues his service to his fellow veterans through his pro bono work with the Veterans Consortium Pro Bono Program.

The program offers free representation to veterans and family members that have been denied disability claims by the VA. The program trains volunteer attorneys to represent the veteran before the U.S. Court of Appeals for Veterans Claims. Many of these cases involve veterans that have extensive injuries related to their service to our country. Some have developed life-threatening diseases, such as cancer, from their exposure to toxic substances while serving at home and abroad. To date, the program has secured over $60.8 million in total legal services donated.

Zach Herbert served for three and a half years on active duty as a Marine Corps Judge Advocate, or lawyer. He is currently a Captain in the Marine Corps Reserves. While on active duty, Captain Herbert was assigned to the Disability Evaluation Services Branch as a Disability Attorney. During this tour, Captain Herbert assisted wounded, ill, and injured Marines and Sailors in navigating a myriad of legal, medical, and fiscal issues through initial diagnosis to final fitness determination. The Camp Lejeune, NC Disability Attorney office handled over 1800 clients per year from five installations on the East Coast of the United States. Captain Herbert's exceptional competence, consistent superior performance of duty, and total dedication to his clients earned him recognition within the Marine Corps community.

Zach now continues his service to veterans through his volunteer work. His knowledge and experience as a Disability Attorney directly benefits the veterans he represents before the U.S. Court of Appeals for Veterans Claims. He hopes to guide his clients through the incredibly complex Veterans Disability laws in order to achieve great results for his veterans.

The Dallas Accident Lawyers at Eberstein & Witherite support Zach in his efforts to serve his country and his fellow veterans and are proud to work alongside such a dedicated Marine.

I am proud to announce my candidacy for State Representative for House District 112. I decided to run because I was tired of watching those few people and organizations down in Austin silence the voices of us North Texans. I believe that democracy is in danger, and I want your help to save it. Let's raise our voices together!

Among the midterm races that in cycles of yore might have seemed without hope for Democrats - but considering the massive outpouring of primary interest this year, suddenly seem possible - is Texas House District 112 in the northeast Dallas area, where widespread dissatisfaction with longtime Republican incumbent Angie Chen Button couples with that Democratic momentum to give nominee Zach Herbert a fair shot. Zach is an attorney, an entrepreneur, a veteran and a community leader - we enjoyed meeting him for this podcast.

- ◆ Herbert was asked on the Progress Texas podcast about a “trend of Democratic candidates who have a military background this cycle”
- ◆ Herbert (segment begins 3:48):

I got a theory. But, you know, I can only speak to myself. I think that for me, I have sat by for a long time when it comes to politics. This is my first foray into politics. In fact, I've never run for student government or anything. I shied away from anything like that. I do love the attention. Don't get me wrong. I'm a trial attorney, but I've never wanted to run for anything until I got back here to Texas. I started practicing law. I realized that down in Austin, a lot of strings are pulled that affect my day to day. And every single session, us plaintiff attorneys hold our breath, hoping that we still have jobs by the end of this session. It happens every single time. And when I looked around in my district, who my representative was, I figured out that we got within 200 votes the first time we challenged her with brandy chambers. They redrew the map after that to gerrymander it to include a big portion of Eastern Dallas County. And then we've gotten closer and closer incrementally since then, and this last time, with the 2024 election. Uh, we saw a great trend in just precincts that used to be really red precincts that are now trending towards the blue side. And I thought, okay, if nobody's going to step up, I'm going to do this thing. And we got my wife and I got approached if and asked if either one of us wanted to run. And she joked that she lost, she won the coin toss, and I lost the coin toss, and that's why. But, you know, I've got, I've got roots in this district. I've been here for over 13 years now. My kids go to school here. I own a small business here. I really, really want to see representation down in Austin, and I called the incumbent my the last year, whenever this horrible bill was going to go through that really would have affected my livelihood, and I never got to have a conversation with her. Never got a response. She ended up voting for the bill, and it ended up not getting passed. But that was a big push for me to realize, Oh, we don't have actual representation in this district. We have somebody who just votes along with whatever Abbott tells her to.

Zach Herbert describes himself as a purpose-driven leader who focuses on solutions over partisanship. While a longtime Democrat, Zach emphasizes finding common ground and addressing the issues that matter most to Texans: affordability, healthcare access, and public education.

- ◆ Herbert (segment begins 20:38):

that happened back in 2005 in the initial tort reform legislation for medical malpractice and the like that. That's that's happened like we've been at war personal injury attorneys with this, this tort reform movement, for decades and and we were, they're chipping away at us every every legislative session that just making it harder and harder. I think the thing that was wrong with this bill, and they already know this, so I can go on record saying it is, it was probably just asked for too much, and they're going to come back in two years, and they're going to try again, and they're probably going to have a better worded bill, and I'm hoping that I'm going to be there so that I can testify about it, and I can teach my fellow legislators. Hey, this is why this is wrong, because it hurts people like you said

Herbert's biggest contributor is Manuel Green, a personal injury attorney who also runs MEG Health Care, a Texas consulting company that arranges spine surgery and other medical care for people injured in car crashes which faced scrutiny in a widening federal bribery investigation in 2022.

- ◆ Herbert reported a $4,963.10 contribution from Manuel Green who listed his occupation as owner of MEG Healthcare. This is the largest single contribution Herbert has reported to date.

Services

At MEG Health Care we facilitate a broad variety of medical treatment provided under Letters of Protection (LOPs), that have either never been available, or only available through claim advance funding companies. We are not talking about physical therapy, or diagnostics (although we facilitate both), but rather surgical care, including surgeries for the spine and extremities. We have assembled a network of highly skilled physicians at the foremost facilities. This will give your injured clients access to cutting-edge, first-class specialists under an LOP. Not only will your clients receive the world-class treatment they need, our network is ready and willing to support it's billing by affidavit or testimony.

About us

MEG Health Care is a consulting group that represents a group of doctors and hospitals who were tired of seeing injured people without access to medical care they needed after an accident. We hold firm to the belief that under the law, and as a matter of basic decency, the person or business that caused an injury should be held responsible.

Victims need medical care after an accident to get proper diagnoses for their injuries, and obtain the care they need to help them cope with their pain, and physical impairment in an effort to get them closer to normal daily living activities. A person who is involved in an accident should not be victimized a second time by having to wait for access to medical care. Often times, it is not until a wrongdoer loses in Court before their insurance company is finally forced to accept responsibility for the harm that has been caused. At MEG Health Care, we appreciate these hardships and we are here to help.

How It Works

- When you identify a client who has a significant medical need, you fill out a simple application here.
- We will then review your application, and if approved, we will contact you within 24-48 hours to schedule your client's initial appointment with one of our doctors.
- From there, our doctors will handle every aspect of the treatment sought, including surgery (if necessary), attendant diagnostics, physical therapy, pain management, rehabilitation, and anything else that may arise.
- At the conclusion of your client's course of treatment, we will furnish you with a complete set of all of the medical bills and records (from all of our providers) accompanied with 18.001 (and de Escobedo) compliant billing affidavits and business record affidavits, thereby saving your staff valuable time and resources.
- When necessary, our doctors will be ready, willing and prepared to defend the necessity of their course of treatment and the reasonableness of the billed charges by way of deposition and/or trial testimony.

Federal investigation into spine surgeries uses mob laws to target healthcare fraud

By Fred Schulte, Kaiser Health News · Feb 9, 2022 11:54am

A Texas consulting company that arranges spine surgery and other medical care for people injured in car crashes has come under scrutiny in a widening federal bribery investigation.

Meg Health Care, run by Dallas personal injury attorney Manuel Green and his wife, Melissa Green, is the focus of a search warrant recently unsealed by a Massachusetts federal court in an alleged health care fraud prosecution there. The probe is unusual because it uses a little-known law meant to crack down on organized crime racketeering across state lines.

Investigators alleged in the 2019 affidavit that the Texas company accepted thousands of dollars in bribes from SpineFrontier, a Massachusetts medical device company. SpineFrontier; its CEO, Dr. Kingsley Chin; and its chief financial officer, Aditya Humad, were indicted in September on charges of paying kickbacks to surgeons. All have pleaded not guilty.

No charges have been filed against the Greens or their company, and federal officials declined to discuss the investigation, which is detailed in the now-unsealed 2019 search warrant.

The Greens could not be reached for comment.

Meg Health Care sets up spine surgery and other medical treatment through “letters of protection,” or LOPs, legal contracts in which patients agree to pay medical bills using proceeds from a lawsuit or other claims against the party responsible for their injuries. These contracts are common in personal injury cases when people either lack health insurance or choose not to use it to pay for medical treatments after an accident. The downside is that patients can be left to foot the bill if their cases settle for less than they owe.

On its website, Meg Health Care says it “represents a group of doctors and hospitals who were tired of seeing injured people without access to medical care they needed after an accident. We hold firm to the belief that under the law, and as a matter of basic decency, the person or business that caused the injury should be held responsible.”

According to investigators, Manuel Green steered injured patients with LOPs to a local neurosurgeon who used SpineFrontier implants in surgeries at two Dallas-area hospitals.

“In exchange for attorney Green’s referral, SpineFrontier agreed to pay attorney Green forty percent (40%) of the revenue SpineFrontier received in connection with those surgical procedures as a bribe,” according to the search warrant affidavit.

Chin and SpineFrontier were the subjects of a KHN investigation published in June that found that manufacturers of hardware for spinal implants, artificial knees, and hip joints had paid more than $3.1 billion to orthopedic and neurological surgeons from August 2013 through 2019.

Government officials have argued for years that payments from device makers to surgeons and other medical providers can corrupt medical decisions, endanger patients, and inflate health care costs. The SpineFrontier indictment alleges that the company paid millions of dollars in bogus consulting fees to spine surgeons in exchange for their using its products, often in surgeries paid for by Medicare or other government-funded health insurance plans.

The Texas investigation adds a new dimension to the case by focusing on medical care that is paid for privately, which is not covered under federal anti-kickback statutes. Instead, the search warrant alleges violations of a law called the Travel Act. Enacted by Congress in the early 1960s to combat the mob, the Travel Act makes it a federal offense to commit crimes like bribery, prostitution, and extortion across state lines, including through the mail or by phone or email. Convictions can bring up to five years in prison, more if violence is involved.

Jonathan Halpern, a New York white-collar criminal defense attorney, said that such a use of the Travel Act reflects “an aggressive expansion” of the U.S. government’s power to prosecute health care fraud.

One of the first health care fraud prosecutions under the Travel Act took place in Texas and led to convictions on bribery and kickback charges of 14 people, including six doctors, associated with Forest Park Medical Center in Dallas. They drew a combined sentence of 74 years and were ordered to pay $82.9 million in restitution.

Chris Davis, a Dallas lawyer who specializes in government investigations, said the Travel Act grants federal prosecutors jurisdiction in cases “where you don’t have state or federal money involved.”

The Meg Health Care search warrant cites payments of more than $93,000 in 10 checks allegedly sent by SpineFrontier to the Texas company between April 2017 and October 2018. Investigators allege that the money was paid as a bribe for referring patients for surgeries using SpineFrontier products.

Investigators also cited a February 2016 email in which Melissa Green told the device company that a patient’s legal case had been settled and asked: “Please let me know when MEG can expect to receive payment per our agreement. Thank you!”

About two months later, the device maker cut the company a check for $3,953.60, according to the search warrant.

Nine of the 10 checks were signed either by Chin, a Fort Lauderdale spine surgeon and SpineFrontier’s founder, or Humad, according to the search warrant affidavit. Chin and Humad are the two executives indicted in September. Their lawyers had no comment.

Federal investigators sought the search warrant for Melissa Green’s email account at Meg Health Care in August 2019, arguing that they had “probable cause” to investigate the company for Travel Act violations, court records show. A federal judge in Massachusetts unsealed the warrant and related documents late last year.

Meg Health Care invites lawyers whose clients have a “significant medical need” to apply to the company, according to its website. If approved, Meg Health Care schedules an appointment with one of its doctors. “From there, our doctors will handle every aspect of the treatment sought, including surgery (if necessary),” the website says.

In a 2019 court filing in Dallas County, unrelated to the search warrant issued in the Massachusetts case, Manuel Green said he was the “founder and owner” of the company. He said it “assists physicians and medical facilities with reducing their exposure to risk when providing treatments to patients under [a] letter of protection.”

He went on to say the company’s “business model and the consulting services it provides are unique within the healthcare industry in the state of Texas.” The company’s website lists medical providers in 11 Texas cities.

According to investigators in the Massachusetts case, Green referred patients with LOPs to Dr. Jacob Rosenstein, an Arlington, Texas, neurosurgeon who used implants that SpineFrontier sold to two hospitals, Pine Creek Medical Center in Dallas and Saint Camillus Medical Center in Hurst, Texas. Pine Creek has since declared bankruptcy.

Neither Rosenstein nor representatives of the hospitals could be reached for comment.

Although proponents say that LOPs may be the only option for uninsured or underinsured crash victims to get medical care, a recent KHN investigation found that doctors and hospitals that accept them often charge much higher rates than Medicare or private insurance would pay for similar care and that the process can saddle patients with medical debt or expose them to safety risks.

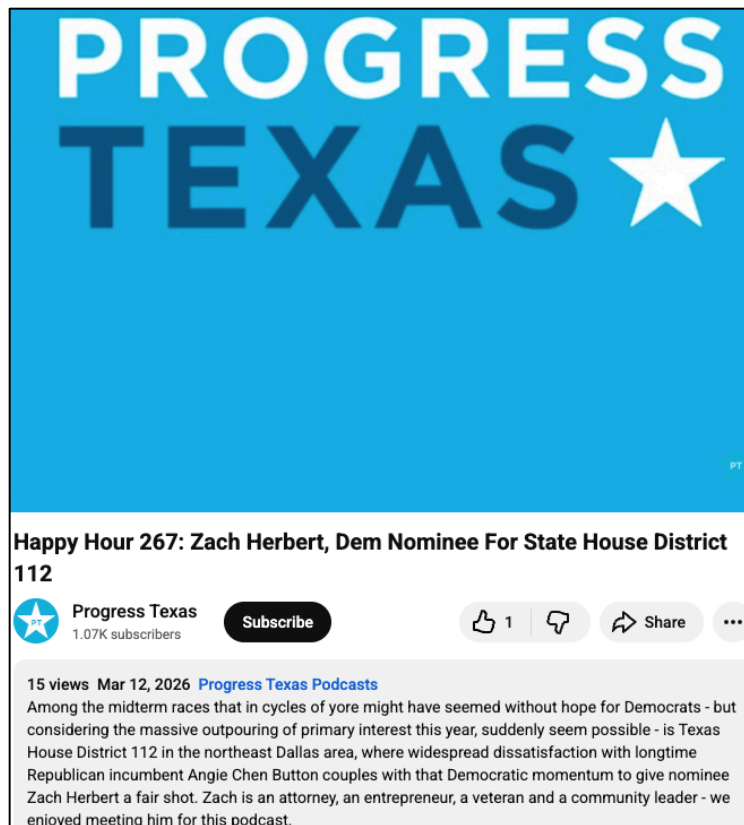

Disputes over the size of medical bills and even whether the care was necessary are common in personal injury lawsuits in Texas. In one 2016 Dallas County case, for instance, a spine surgeon billed more than $100,000 for his services, while the hospital charged more than $435,000. By contrast, an expert hired by the defense set a reasonable fee at less than $4,000 for the surgeon and about $25,000 for the hospital, court records show. The case has since been settled.

Christine Dickison, a Texas nurse and medical coding consultant, said she routinely sees “hugely inflated” bills in car-crash lawsuits — and in some cases doubts whether the care was necessary.

“I see people who are undergoing surgery when there are literally no objective findings that support it,” Dickison said. “That is very disturbing to me.”

Herbert was asked on the Progress Texas podcast about a “trend” of figures like James Talarico and Jasmine Crockett “taking religion back from the Christian nationalist types who have weaponized religion for their own ends”. Herbert did not dispute the premise of the question, in fact he said he’s “thought about it a lot” and that “a lot of people have gone through what they're now terming a deconstruction of their faith.” So... does Herbert stand with Pastor “God is nonbinary” Talarico?

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=AVO_X62Bj7U; video archived here

- ◆ Herbert was asked about a “an uptick in the role that spirituality and religion has taken in democratic messaging this time around” (segment begins 6:06)

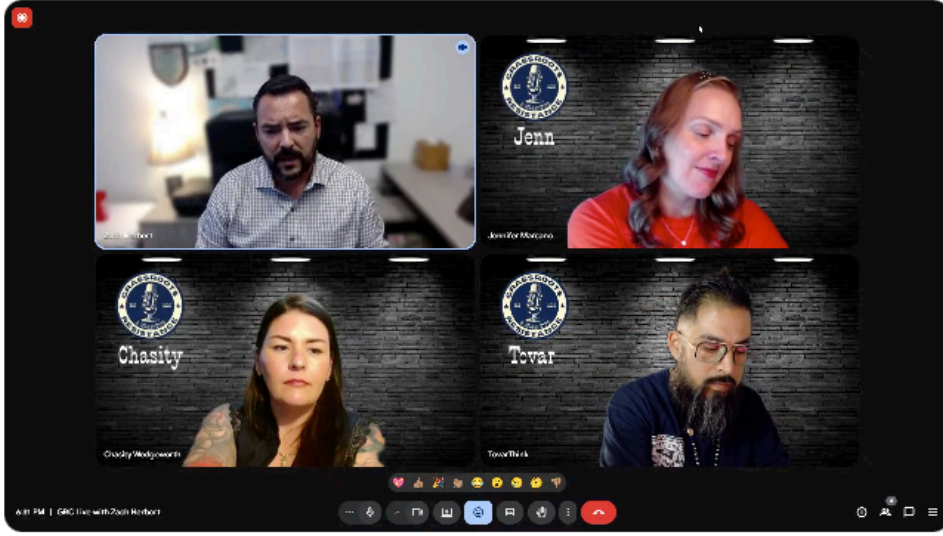

And absolutely you're not the first person who has reported that that type of difficulty from this particular incumbent, Angie Chen Button. So very interesting to see how this all plays out over the next few months. Moving on to that other side, that other trend we talked about, you've also been engaged in theological study. We've seen, I think perhaps, with James Talarico and Jasmine Crockett being kind of the primary example, is an uptick in the role that spirituality and religion has taken in democratic messaging this time around, which, you know, to some, might seem like a bucking of a longer term trend. Give us your take on that. It almost feels like normal folks taking religion back from the Christian nationalist types who have weaponized religion for their own ends. Is this something that you've thought about much?

◆ Herbert (segment begins 6:52):

I've thought about it a lot, and I think that it's something that my generation, and you can argue with me, what my generation is. I don't really know it's either x or millennial. I'm a 1984 so I'm on the cusp. Yeah and yeah, you're right there on the line my generation. I feel like I see and talk about this a lot with people who were raised in the church here in Texas, and they were taught the teachings of Jesus and the New Testament, and now as adults, they're taking this real hard look at okay, in practice, are we actually doing what I was taught? And a lot of people have gone through what they're now terming a deconstruction of their faith, where they take the major tenets that they want to apply to their lives, and that's what they're going to show to the world, and that's essentially what I did when I was in college. I just didn't have a word for it. Instead of going to divinity school, I decided that I would be best suited to go to law school and represent individuals. I didn't care if it was going to be criminal or civil, but I knew that I was going to be a voice for people, because I was constantly battling other theologians in my in my denomination that I was in saying no, it says this. We should be doing it this way. But there was no room for debate, really, in that environment that I was a part of. And so law was way better for me to be able to use my voice that I have, which is very loud. I've been told by teachers, my wife, everybody, and I can be a voice for people that either don't know, don't have the resources, or just can't speak up for themselves. And it just really was an easy transition into the law, and it seems to me that it's going to be a very easy transition into politics, because it's the same muscles for all of those things growing up.

Herbert: “am I a Christian just because I was raised Christian? And I think that you can change your environment, then you can change your beliefs. And so that's what I did. I changed my environment, and I went to California for law school.”

Zach Herbert describes himself as a purpose-driven leader who focuses on solutions over partisanship. While a longtime Democrat, Zach emphasizes finding common ground and addressing the issues that matter most to Texans: affordability, healthcare access, and public education.

◆ Herbert (segment begins 58:42):

you know, I, my belief system, I think, is slowly evolved over a lifetime. I can't think of any one, you know, book that's completely changed or the direction of my beliefs. They've they've slowly galvanized over a lot of experience that I've had, but not completely. I'm still, you know, I'm flexible to new ideas, but I can tell you, and this is going to sound a little hoity toity, I think, and I don't want it to come across that way, but when I was in college, we had to read John Locke's the Essay

Concerning Human Understanding, and that's the only, the only takeaway from that is that the Clean Slate, the tabula rasa, that John Locke's philosophy is that everybody is kind of born with this clean slate in your environment dictates your beliefs, right? And so it really doesn't matter. It doesn't matter who you are. If I plopped you into a Christian household, you'd probably be a Christian. If I took you and I plopped you into a Muslim household, you would, you would be a Muslim, right? That's it's kind of the idea behind this, but I, but I really kept thinking about this over and over again. This is. When I was a theology major and I was going to go into the I was going to be a pastor, that's why I went to college for and it just really had me wrestle with this idea is, am I a Christian? Just because I was raised Christian? And I think that you can change your environment, then you can change your beliefs. And so that's what I did. I changed my environment, and I went to California for law school. But I love the I love wrestling with ice. I did this was before I had four kids, and now that I've had four kids, and I'm watching them grow up, my oldest is 15, I think a lot of things are baked in I don't think they're complete clean slate. I think they got a lot of personality from day one.

NEED A NAIL SALON NEGLIGENCE LAWYER?

Infections and burns can occur if the beauty salon techs are not properly trained.

Attorney Zach Herbert is one of the few attorneys in Texas experienced in Nail Salon Negligence. It is no surprise that many nail salons sometimes ignore safety and sanitary laws that the State of Texas imposes on them, to the detriment of their customers. Infections, cuts, and even burns can occur if the beauty technicians are not properly trained on sanitary and safety laws.

If you have been injured because of the negligence of a nail salon, the first thing you need to do is ask for everyone's license and take down all the names and numbers of those that worked on you. Take pictures of the salon and the people involved if possible. The more information the better.

Herbert Law Group will investigate the salon for past violations and quickly determine what the next step should be. This is a very specific area of the law, so only hire a lawyer that has the experience like Zach Herbert at HLG!

- ◆ In February 2021, Witherite Law Group filed a verified petition requesting pre-suit discovery to investigate potential claims against Herbert & Eberstein, LLC and Brian Eberstein. The petition alleged Eberstein (Witherite’s former law partner) retired and violated the agreement with Witherite by continuing to market legal services based on Witherite’s branding.

III. BACKGROUND

A. History of Eberstein & Witherite, LLP

8. Eberstein is an attorney and formerly one of two equity partners in Eberstein & Witherite, LLP. Amy K. Witherite (“Amy”), was the other equity partner.¹ Together, Eberstein and Amy built a successful law practice, specializing in areas such as motor vehicle accidents, personal injury, product liability, medical malpractice, and wrongful death. For instance, they coined the marketing for “1-800-CarWreck” and “1-800-Truck-Wreck” in North Texas, which were and continues to be extraordinarily successful.

Dallas County District Court, DC-21-01964, Petition filed 02/12/2021, Docket, Full Case File p. 2

9. Over the years, Eberstein & Witherite, LLP gained a significant amount of goodwill and a reputation in the industry for quality work for its clients. It also developed and owned extensive intellectual property associated with the firm which it would utilize in marketing and advertising. A firm's name and reputation (i.e., its goodwill), along with intellectual property and its use in advertising, are vitally important in the area of plaintiff personal injury litigation. Indeed, personal injury law firms regularly spend a significant portion of their budget on local advertising directed at their target market. Thus, the goodwill associated with the name "Eberstein & Witherite, LLP" developed over time and continues to maintain significant value, both as a marketing tool, and for the reputation associated with it in the North Texas community by past, current and future clients and referral sources, as well as colleagues in the legal community. This goodwill and the firm's reputation were and continue to be the product of hard work, countless hours, and a relentless pursuit of justice for the firm's clients.

B. Eberstein Retires and is Bought Out by Witherite.

10. In 2015, Eberstein decided to retire and sell his interest in the practice. Amy and Eberstein agreed on terms by which Amy would buy out Eberstein's ownership of Eberstein & Witherite, LLP. The parties entered into a Partnership Interest Purchase Agreement ("Purchase Agreement") March 20, 2015, reflecting this agreement.

11. Eberstein's name was part of Eberstein & Witherite, LLP, and Witherite acquired the name, associated website domains and intellectual property in the Purchase Agreement. The Purchase Agreement also contained specific restrictions on Eberstein regarding the use of his name in the legal community after his retirement. Indeed, the Purchase Agreement specifically stated

D. Eberstein Starts Herbert & Eberstein, LLP, Advertising that it is “Formerly Eberstein & Witherite” and that Eberstein is “Formerly of Eberstein & Witherite”

15. On June 29, 2020, Eberstein and Zachary D. Herbert (“Herbert”) formed Herbert & Eberstein, LLP by certificate of formation filed with the Texas Secretary of State:

Form 701 Secretary of State P.O. 1. The name of the partnership is: Herbert & Eberstein, LLP

16. Recently, Witherite learned of H&E’s advertisements that appear to be in violation of the Purchase Agreement and Witherite’s intellectual property rights. After performing a search of “Witherite Law Group” and related terms on Google, paid ads populate at the top of the search results, promoting Eberstein, stating that his new firm, H&E, is “Formerly Eberstein & Witherite” and another advertisement reads that Eberstein is “Formerly of Eberstein & Witherite” with a link to H&E’s website, www.heinjury.com:

IV. SUBJECT-MATTER OF PRE-SUIT DISCOVERY

A. Basis for Pre-Suit Discovery.

17. The purpose of the discovery sought by this Petition is to investigate the marketing and advertising tactics of Eberstein and H&E, and if (or to what extent) those actions give rise to statutory, contractual and common law claims. In addition, this Petition seeks discovery of the cases signed up and revenue generated from these advertisements. The TEXAS RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE provide that a “person may petition the court for an order authorizing the taking of a deposition on oral examination or written questions either (a) to perpetuate or obtain the person’s own testimony or that of any other person for use in an anticipated lawsuit; or (b) to investigate a potential claim or suit.”³ Here, Witherite seeks to depose Eberstein and a corporate representative of H&E, to investigate these potential claims and to determine whether to pursue those claims further to seek injunctive relief and/or damages.

B. Pre-suit Discovery is Necessary to Investigate Potential Claims and Suit Against Eberstein and H&E.

18. Pre-suit discovery is necessary in order to investigate: (1) all instances that Eberstein and/or H&E have used the ‘Eberstein Witherite’ name, or any other intellectual property of Witherite, in

TO THE HONORABLE JUDGE OF SAID COURT:

COMES NOW, Petitioner the Witherite Law Group, PLLC (“Petitioner” or “Witherite”) and files this its Motion for Substituted Service (“Motion”), and in support thereof, respectfully states as follows:

I. BACKGROUND

1. On February 11, 2021, Witherite filed its Verified Petition Requesting Pre-Suit Discovery to Investigate Potential Claims (the “Petition”). Contemporaneously, counsel for Witherite sent the Petition along with a cease-and-desist demand to the email addresses brian@baddrugdallaslawyer.com and brian@zherbertlaw.com, which were provided by Amy Witherite, Brian Eberstein’s (“Eberstein”) former law partner, and known to be used by Eberstein.¹ Shortly after the emails were sent, Eberstein and his current law partner Zach Herbert (“Herbert”) called counsel for Witherite, confirming that the email addresses above are used and monitored by Eberstein.

ORDER GRANTING PRE-SUIT DISCOVERY

On this day came to be considered the Witherite Law Group, PLLC’s (“Petitioner” or “Witherite”) Verified Petition Requesting Pre-Suit Discovery to Investigate Potential Claims (“Petition”). The Petition seeks pre-suit discovery from Herbert & Eberstein, LLP (“H&E”) and Brian Eberstein (“Eberstein”) (collectively, “Respondents”). After considering the Petition, the evidence submitted, the applicable authorities, the arguments of counsel, and the other items on file with the Court, the Court finds that the likely benefit of allowing Petitioner to take the requested deposition, with duces tecum, from Respondents to investigate potential claims, outweighs the burden or expense of the procedure. See TEX. R. CIV. P. 202.4(a).

It is therefore ORDERED, ADJUDGED and DECREED that Petitioner is permitted to take the oral deposition of the corporate representative(s) of H&E, which shall appear for deposition no later than twenty-one (21) calendar days after being served with notice pursuant to TEX. R. CIV. P. 199.2(b)(1) (with service being permitted under TEX. R. CIV. P. 21a).

It is FURTHER ORDERED that Petitioner is permitted to take the oral deposition of Eberstein, who shall appear for deposition no later than twenty-one (21) calendar days after being served with notice pursuant to TEX. R. CIV. P. 199.2 (with service being permitted under TEX. R. CIV. P. 21a).

ORDER

It is FURTHER ORDERED that Respondents produce documents referred to in Paragraph 22 of the Petition, namely:

For Eberstein:

- i. All documents and communications associated with the drafting, promotion and approval of Advertisement No. 1 and Advertisement No. 2 (identified in the Petition) and any other similar advertisements using Witherite's intellectual and proprietary property;
- ii. All communications related to H&E's use of 'Eberstein & Witherite, LLP' or any other mark owned by Witherite, in advertising. For clarification, not limitation, this includes a request for all communications between Eberstein and any employee or agent of H&E, including Zachary D. Herbert, regarding or concerning H&E's use of Eberstein & Witherite, LLP in advertising;
- iii. All communications between Eberstein and any representative of H&E, including but not limited to Zachary D. Herbert, regarding the use of "Eberstein & Witherite, LLP" in advertising;

For H&E:

- i. All communications related to H&E's use of the Eberstein & Witherite, LLP name, or any other mark owned by Witherite, in advertising. For clarification, not limitation, this request includes a request for all communications with any search engine (i.e. Google), social medial platform (i.e. Facebook) or professional review platform (i.e. Yelp), or third party marketing agencies, regarding or concerning advertising for H&E that includes a reference to Eberstein & Witherite, LLP or any other mark, name or domain owned by Witherite;
- ii. All documents and communications associated with the drafting, promotion and approval of Advertisement No. 1 and Advertisement No. 2, identified in the Petition;
- iii. All documents related to: (i) H&E's use of Eberstein & Witherite, LLP, Witherite's name, and any other trademarks, names and domains owned by Witherite in advertising, including all forums, websites, and media in which H&E has advertised; (ii) all data H&E has received from the respective forums, websites, and media regarding such advertising; (iii) all calls and client intake information associated with the advertising; (iv) all client engagements and case sign-ups associated with said advertising; and (v) all revenue received from any settlements of cases associated with said advertising or during the time period in which H&E has been utilizing such advertising.

Case No. DC-21-03833

IN RE PETITION OF: HERBERT & EBERSTEIN, LLP, REQUESTING THE DEPOSITION OF: WITHERITE LAW GROUP, PLLC,		IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF DALLAS COUNTY, TEXAS 95th ____ JUDICIAL DISTRICT

PETITIONER'S VERIFIED RULE 202 PETITION

Pursuant to Texas Rule of Civil Procedure 202, Petitioner Herbert & Eberstein, LLP ("H&E") files this Verified Rule 202 Petition requesting authority to depose upon oral examination a corporate representative of Respondent Witherite Law Group, PLLC ("Respondent" or "Witherite Law Group") to acquire information sufficient to identify certain advertisements and communications that purport to provide misleading information with respect to Brian Eberstein in anticipation of claims by H&E against the Witherite Law Group and such persons.

DISCOVERY-CONTROL PLAN & RULE 47 STATEMENT

1. H&E intends to conduct discovery under Level 3 of Texas Rule of Civil Procedure 190.4.
2. H&E presently seeks only non-monetary relief.

PARTIES

3. H&E. Petitioner Herbert & Eberstein, LLP is a limited liability company organized and existing under the laws of the state of Texas whose principal place of business is in Dallas County, Texas.

10. Effective as of March 20, 2015, Eberstein withdrew as a partner from Eberstein and & Witherite by entering into a confidential Partnership Interest Purchase Agreement (“Purchase Agreement”) with Amy Witherite, among other parties. In February 2020, Witherite converted Eberstein & Witherite to the Witherite Law Group. Around June 2020, Eberstein formed a new law practice, H&E, with Zachary Herbert (“Herbert”).

B. Confusion in Marketplace Occurs Due to Witherite Law Group's Misleading Activities.

11. Several of Eberstein’s former or referral clients have mistakenly contacted the Witherite Law Group attempting to speak with Eberstein. Some of these former and referral clients informed Eberstein about how they mistakenly contacted the Witherite Law Group based on it using the name Eberstein & Witherite.

12. For example, the Witherite Law Group currently maintains a website at the URL, <https://www.ebersteinwitherediscriminationlawyers.com>, that prominently advertises its services under the name “Eberstein & Witherite, LLP” despite the fact that Eberstein is in direct competition with the Witherite Law Group:

rights and property, including the registered trademarks for “EBERSTEIN WITHERITE” and “EWLAWYERS” to Witherite.¹⁹ Although the name of the firm changed, Witherite still uses E&W’s online presence for marketing purposes such as on the Witherite website:

Our Founder, Amy Witherite

Originally formed as Eberstein Witherite in 2001, a medical malpractice law firm with less than ten employees, Amy Witherite grew the firm and changed its name in 2020 to Witherite Law Group. The firm has evolved into one of the largest female-owned personal injury law firms in the country. Also operating under the brand names 1-800-TruckWreck and 1-800-CarWreck, the firm focuses on delivering helping those, regardless of socioeconomic background, who have been injured in a car or truck accident. Due to the firm’s outstanding track record and reputation, other law firms refer their cases to our attorneys when accident cases or other business litigation, personal injury or insurance bad faith claims need specialized attention.

16. In addition, E&W websites are still active, indexed by Google, and link to Witherite’s website.²⁰ In addition, as the Purchase Agreement contemplates, Witherite continues to use the E&W name, trademarks and intellectual property through the purchase of targeted advertising.²¹

D. Eberstein Starts Herbert & Eberstein, LLP, Advertising That It Is “Formerly Eberstein & Witherite” And That Eberstein Is “Formerly of Eberstein & Witherite”

17. In 2020, Eberstein came out of retirement. Specifically, on June 29, 2020, Eberstein and Zachary D. Herbert (“Herbert”) formed Herbert & Eberstein, LLP by certificate of formation filed with the Texas Secretary of State.²² Recently, Witherite learned that H&E published several advertisements that appear to be in violation of the Purchase Agreement and Witherite’s intellectual property rights. After performing a search of “Witherite Law Group” and related terms on Google, paid ads populated at the top of the search results, promoting Eberstein, stating that his new firm, H&E, is “Formerly Eberstein & Witherite” with a link to H&E’s website, www.heinjury.com:²³

¹⁹ See Exhibit A-2, Trademark Registrations.

²⁰ See, e.g., <https://www.ebersteinwitherediscriminationlawyers.com/>

²¹ See Witherite Decl. at ¶2.

²² See Exhibit E, H&E formation documents.

²³ In addition, another advertisement reads that Eberstein is “Formerly of Eberstein & Witherite.”

VERIFICATION

I, Zachary Herbert, hereby state and declare as follows:

1. I am an owner of Petitioner Herbert & Eberstein, LLP ("H&E") in the above-captioned action, and I am authorized to execute this verification on behalf of H&E]
2. I have read H&E's above Petition, and I know the contents thereof.
3. I am informed and believe that the factual statements contained in the Petition are within my personal knowledge and are true and correct and, on that ground, state that the matters stated therein are true and correct.

My name is Zachary (First) David (Middle) Herbert (Last), my date of birth is 4/15/1984, and my address is 2805 Crystal Falls Drive (Street), Garland (City), Texas (State), 75044 (Zip Code), and USA (Country).

I declare under penalty of perjury under the laws of the United State and the State of Texas that the foregoing is true and correct.

ZACHARY HERBERT

4. In 2020, Eberstein came out of retirement and joined Witherite's former associate Zach Herbert ("Herbert") to form H&E.

5. In January of 2021, Witherite discovered that H&E published several advertisements using the E&W name, and falsely claiming that H&E was "formerly Eberstein & Witherite." Wanting to investigate this obviously problematic marketing strategy, Witherite filed a Rule 202 Petition.²

What followed was a targeted practice of gamesmanship and harassment aimed only to intimidate Witherite to dropping her Rule 202 Petition:

- a. Witherite's counsel sent H&E and Eberstein a courtesy copy of the Witherite Petition via email, to which both immediately responded, and engaged counsel. However, H&E, Eberstein and their attorneys refused to accept service, multiple times despite having discussed Witherite's Petition with the undersigned. After Witherite's process servers made 9 attempts over a nearly two week span, it became clear they were evading service, forcing Witherite to file a Motion for Substituted Service. Within less than a day after filing the Motion for Substitute Service, counsel for H&E made a formal appearance;³
- b. The day they appeared in Witherite's 202 proceeding, Counsel for H&E sent a demand letter to counsel for Witherite, stating "we intend to file a federal lawsuit against your client for unfair competition and other wrongs" and threatening to cancel Witherite's registered trademarks if Witherite did not drop the Witherite Rule 202 Petition. Witherite refused to be intimidated and rejected the 'demand';
- c. H&E did not file the federal lawsuit it claimed was imminent. Instead, H&E copied and pasted, almost word for word, most of Witherite's 202 Petition and re-packaged it as H&E's Petition, knowing that Eberstein had sold all of the intellectual property rights at issue in this proceeding to Witherite for several million dollars in 2015.

6. The Court should deny H&E's Petition for four reasons.

- a. It is a copy and paste reproduction of Witherite's Rule 202 Petition, filed in bad faith, solely to harass Witherite, using 'anticipated' claims it knows are frivolous and not anticipated;
- b. It is procedurally flawed, failing to meet the basic requirements of Rule 202. H&E stated plainly in its demand letter that it had all the information it needed, and if it

² See Witherite's Verified Petition Requesting Pre-Suit Discovery to Investigate Potential Claims, filed February 12, 2021 in Cause No. DC-21-01964 (the "Witherite 202 Petition").

³ See Motion for Substituted Service filed March 11, 2021 in Cause No. DC-21-01964 ("Motion for Substituted Service").

H. H&E Files Its Rule 202 Petition, Copy and Pasting Witherite’s Rule 202 Petition.

24. H&E never filed a federal lawsuit, and it is now clear this strategy was merely a lawyer-created ruse to intimidate Witherite. Instead, prior to the hearing on Witherite’s Rule 202 Petition, on March 25, 2021, H&E filed this action, seeking the deposition of Witherite, again hoping that by filing it, Witherite would stop its investigation into H&E and Eberstein’s wrongdoing. Notably, H&E attempted, unsuccessfully, to have this matter set at the same time as Witherite’s 202 Petition. The H&E 202 Petition is a carbon-copy of Witherite’s Rule 202 Petition, with entire paragraphs being directly copied, for example:

Witherite’s Rule 202 Petition	H&E’s Rule 202 Petition
The purpose of the discovery sought by this Petition is to investigate the marketing and advertising tactics of Eberstein and H&E, and if (or to what extent) those actions give rise to statutory, contractual and common law claims. Texas Rule of Civil Procedure 202 provides that “[a] person may petition the court for an order authorizing the taking of a deposition on oral examination or written questions either: (a) to perpetuate or

I. Witherite's Rule 202 Petition is Granted, but H&E and Eberstein Refuse to Provide Deposition Dates, Forcing Witherite to Notice the Depositions which are then Quashed.

26. On April 7, 2021, Judge Ray Wheless signed an Order granting the Witherite Rule 202 Petition in its entirety.⁴⁴ Immediately after Judge Wheless signed the Order, H&E and Eberstein again pursued a strategy of evasion. Witherite's attorneys requested deposition dates no less than three times, with no substantive response.⁴⁵ This forced Witherite to notice the deposition unilaterally, which H&E moved to quash.⁴⁶ Only after these stall tactics was a date for H&E and Eberstein's deposition agreed to. As of the filing of this Response, the date for H&E and Eberstein's deposition is May 7, 2021, the day after the hearing on H&E's 202 Petition.⁴⁷

V. ARGUMENTS & AUTHORITIES

A. Rule 202 Standard

⁴² See Exhibit B-3, Demand.

⁴³ See Exhibit B-3, Demand.

⁴⁴ Exhibit G, Order Granting Witherite's Rule 202 Deposition (the "Order")

⁴⁵ See Exhibit B-5, Emails regarding deposition dates.

⁴⁶ See Exhibit H, Motion to Quash and Motion for Protective Order

⁴⁷ Notably, this matter was initially set on April 16, 2021 for April 23, 2021. This notice failed to comply with Rule 202's 15-day notice requirement, which Witherite's counsel specifically stated Witherite was not waiving by accepting service of H&E's Petition.

The Purchase Agreement stated that Eberstein was considered retired from the firm under Texas disciplinary and ethics rules. On February 27, 2020, I converted the legal entity 'Eberstein & Witherite, LLP' to 'Witherite Law Group, PLLC' and assigned all rights, property and interest for E&W to WLG. See Attachment A-2, Trademark Registrations & Assignment; see Attachment A-3, Conversion Documents. Those rights included the registered trademarks for "EBERSTEIN WITHERITE" and "EWLAWYERS." While the firm's name changed, E&W still had significant value in name recognition, and WLG still uses the E&W name as well as the trademarks above in advertising.

3. My understanding is that sometime in 2020, Eberstein came out of retirement and joined Zach Herbert, a former associate for E&W, to form H&E. In approximately January of 2021, I learned that advertisements appearing to be for H&E represented that H&E was "formerly Eberstein & Witherite" and that Eberstein was "formerly of Eberstein & Witherite." This was concerning, because H&E is not "formerly Eberstein & Witherite" as it claims. In addition, the advertisements I saw gave me concern that Eberstein violated the terms of the Purchase Agreement regarding the use of E&W intellectual property. For that reason, I directed my attorneys to file a Rule 202 Petition to investigate claims against H&E and Eberstein. Shortly after H&E and Eberstein's attorneys filed a notice of appearance, they sent my attorneys a demand letter stating that Eberstein intended to file a federal lawsuit against WLG for the use of the E&W name in advertising. I considered this letter an attempt to intimidate and harass WLG into not pursuing its Rule 202 Petition to investigate claims against H&E and Eberstein. I directed my attorneys to reject the demand. H&E's Rule 202 Petition was filed shortly thereafter, which is another attempt to intimidate and harass WLG into not pursuing the investigation ordered in response to WLG's Rule 202 Petition.

4. I have read H&E's Rule 202 Petition. The discovery sought, both by deposition topic and by document requests would create an incredible burden on me, my staff and the attorneys I hired to respond to H&E's Petition. This burden outweighs any perceived benefit H&E could possibly gain from the procedure as detailed below:

- a. Regarding the topics that H&E seeks to investigate, the topics would effectively require that a corporate representative for WLG to interview each employee of WLG, and every vendor involved in advertising, to discover what statements they made and what communications they had regarding Eberstein. WLG employs over 250 people. Assuming that a corporate representative of WLG spends half an hour per employee determining if the employee has relevant information and learning same, WLG's corporate representative will spend 125 hours simply interviewing employees. This does not include interviewing vendors associated with advertising or the other necessary actions required to prepare for the deposition sought by H&E. If I were to be the corporate representative, this would translate to $62,500 in time that I would have to take away from my responsibilities for WLG, because my hourly rate is $500 ($$500 \times 125 = $62,500$).

Re: CEASE AND DESIST DEMAND – Improper Use of Witherite Law Group, PLLC’s Proprietary and Intellectual Property.

Mr. Eberstein and Mr. Herbert,

I represent Witherite Law Group, PLLC (“Witherite”). It has come to our attention that Herbert & Eberstein, LLP (“H&E”) has been representing that H&E is “formerly Eberstein & Witherite” and that you are “formerly of Eberstein & Witherite” in H&E’s online advertisements. Enclosed is a courtesy copy of Witherite Law Group, PLLC’s Verified Petition Requesting Pre-Suit Discovery to Investigate Potential Claims (the “Petition”) filed today in Dallas County seeking discovery regarding these advertisements and public representations.

To the extent that you intend to continue making the representations referenced above, through advertisement or otherwise, consider this letter a demand that you, IMMEDIATELY CEASE AND DESIST USING THE NAME “EBERSTEIN & WITHERITE, LLP,” “EBERSTEIN WITHERITE” OR “EWLAWYERS” OR SUCH SIMILAR STATEMENTS IN YOUR ADVERTISEMENTS AND/OR PROMOTIONAL MATERIALS. IT IS FURTHER DEMANDED THAT YOU IMMEDIATELY CEASE AND DECIST REFERENCING THAT H&E IS “FORMERLY EBERSTEIN & WITHERITE” OR THAT YOU ARE “FORMERLY OF EBERSTEIN & WITHERITE” OR SIMILAR STATEMENTS.

In addition, you are hereby placed on notice that you are to preserve all communications and materials that are within your possession, custody or control related in any way to: (a) H&E’s use of the “Eberstein & Witherite, LLP” name, or any other intellectual property of Witherite, in advertising; (b) all representations made by you or H&E that H&E is “formerly Eberstein & Witherite” or that you are “formerly of Eberstein & Witherite”; and (c) all information and data

Christian:

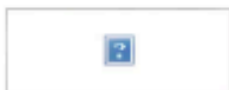

Normally when my request for a routine professional courtesy is rejected, I will still extend the courtesy when it is asked of me. That's just how the lawyers and I practice at my firm.

But let's review the series of events first before I respond: after I filed the Rule 202 Petition and emailed it to your clients, your clients called me to discuss, obviously having received and reviewed our Rule 202. When I asked them to accept service, they refused. A week later when I talked with you and Darin, you again refused to accept service, when you had also clearly received and reviewed our Rule 202 Petition. Meanwhile we had to have process servers running around trying to serve your clients, who were clearly being evasive and could have easily accepted. It was only after we filed the Motion to Substitute and highlighted these tactics, did you guys make an appearance.

Now after your threat to file a frivolous federal lawsuit, you decided to instead filed your own Rule 202 Petition that essentially copy/pasted mine and changed firm names around. I'll save my words for what I think of this filing for Judge Purdy or Judge Wheless at the appropriate time.

Nevertheless, and despite you and your client's gamesmanship, I will agree to accept service after the Citation is issued. Please note that I am not waiving the 15 day notice period before the hearing and expect you guys to coordinate with me on dates for the hearing because I am accepting service. However, you and your clients should strongly consider pulling your 202 filing down, because I intend to demonstrate it is frivolous and brought in bad faith in violation of Rule 13.

COMES NOW, Petitioner the Witherite Law Group, PLLC (“Petitioner” or “Witherite”) and files this its Unopposed Motion to Reinstate and Motion for Entry of Agreed Judgment (the “Motion”) and would respectfully show the Court as follows:

I. BACKGROUND

This matter was filed on February 12, 2021 as a Rule 202 Petition (the “Petition”) seeking discovery to investigate potential claims. The Petition was granted on April 7, 2021. Subsequently, the Parties agreed to enter into an Agreed Permanent Injunction and Final Judgment, resolving the potential claims being investigated by the Petition. See Exhibit A, Agreed Permanent Injunction and Final Judgment (the “Agreed Injunction”). This matter was set for trial on April 11, 2022. While the Parties executed the Agreed Injunction, due to an administrative oversight, the Parties did not submit the Agreed Injunction prior to the trial date. The failure to submit the Agreed Injunction prior to the trial date was not intentional or the result of conscious indifference but was rather due to an accident or mistake. This matter was dismissed for want of prosecution on April 8, 2022 by written order (“Dismissal Order”).

RE: Notice of Impending Termination Reports Due: 2022 & 2023
For: Herbert Law Group LLP
File No: 803665784

Dear Sir or Madam,

Section 152.806 of the Texas Business Organizations Code requires a partnership that registers as a Texas limited liability partnership to file an annual report, together with the applicable filing fee, with the Secretary of State no later than June 1 of each year following the calendar year in which the application for registration takes effect. The filing fee is $200 per general partner.

What Our Records Show

Our records show that the partnership did not file the annual report due for 2022.

What We Need and When We Need It

Please send us: 1) the past due annual report; 2) the annual report due for the current year; and 3) the fee for each report. In the case of a past due report, the fee is $200 for each general partner as of May 31st of the report year due. Both reports, together with all applicable fees, must be received in our office on or before May 31, 2023.

What Will Happen

If we do not receive and file both the past due report and the current year's report, together with all filing fees, on or before May 31st the registration of the partnership will be automatically terminated. Please note that a termination of registration affects only the partnership's status as a limited liability partnership and is not an event requiring the winding up of the partnership.

If you have any questions about this notice, or about filing the annual report, please call 512-475-2705 or e-mail: ReportsUnit@sos.texas.gov

Sincerely,

Herbert responded in his Dallas Morning News candidate questionnaire that the political leader he most admires is Barak [sic] Obama... “he inspired me then and he still inspires me now.”

 ELECTIONS 2026 | DEMOCRAT PRIMARY CANDIDATE Q&AS

Texas House District 112

Zach Herbert

The Dallas Morning News sent questionnaires to candidates who provided the answers included here. We limited each candidate to a 200 word count per question, but we did not edit answers in any way. These answers are provided here to allow candidates to speak directly to our readers.

– What political leader do you most admire and why?

Zach Herbert:

Barak Obama, I was always impressed with his intelligent and calm demeanor. He was the President while I was a Marine, and I voted for him while I was still in Law School. He inspired me then and he still inspires me now.

<https://www.dallasnews.com/projects/2026/dallas-texas-primary-election-voter-guide/texas-house-district-112-democrat/>

Herbert “will fight to fully fund public schools and oppose policies that divert resources away from classrooms” according to his Dallas Morning News candidate questionnaire. Notably, Herbert does not mention any of this on his campaign website, instead focusing on teacher pay and omitting any mention of school choice.

Zach Herbert

The Dallas Morning News sent questionnaires to candidates who provided the answers included here. We limited each candidate to a 200 word count per question, but we did not edit answers in any way. These answers are provided here to allow candidates to speak directly to our readers.

– If elected, what will be your top three priorities?

Zach Herbert:

My top priorities are education, affordability, and workers’ rights. I will fight to fully fund public schools and oppose policies that divert resources away from classrooms. I will work to lower everyday costs like housing, property taxes, and insurance so families can stay in the communities they call home. And I will stand up for workers by supporting fair wages, safe workplaces, and the right to be treated with dignity on the job.

- ◆ “Our public schools are facing growing pressure from underfunding and state policies that divert resources away from neighborhood classrooms. Voucher programs risk draining already limited funds, making it harder for public schools to attract teachers, reduce class sizes, and provide students with the education they deserve.”

– What are the most significant long-term challenges facing your district and how will you address them?

Zach Herbert:

One of the most significant long-term challenges facing our district is the continued erosion of local control. Too often, Austin lawmakers impose one-size-fits-all mandates that limit the ability of local governments to respond to the unique needs of their communities. Decisions about zoning, public safety, infrastructure, and taxation are best made by the people closest to those issues.

The same concern applies to public education. Our public schools are facing growing pressure from underfunding and state policies that divert resources away from neighborhood classrooms. Voucher programs risk draining already limited funds, making it harder for public schools to attract teachers, reduce class sizes, and provide students with the education they deserve.

I will work to protect local decision-making, defend public education funding, and push back against unfunded mandates from the state. Strong communities and strong schools are essential to the long-term success of our district, and both depend on empowering local leaders—not sidelining them.

- ◆ “Texas must fix school funding by making it adequate, predictable, and inflation-proof. HB 3 was a start, but it didn’t go far enough—districts are still struggling with rising costs, teacher shortages, and unfunded mandates. The next chapter should raise and index the basic allotment, fully fund special education, and invest in teachers so that strong public schools remain the foundation of opportunity for every Texas student.”

– How should Texas improve school funding? Did HB3 go far enough? What does the next chapter of Texas education look like?

Zach Herbert:
 Texas must fix school funding by making it adequate, predictable, and inflation-proof. HB 3 was a start, but it didn’t go far enough—districts are still struggling with rising costs, teacher shortages, and unfunded mandates. The next chapter should raise and index the basic allotment, fully fund special education, and invest in teachers so that strong public schools remain the foundation of opportunity for every Texas student.

I attended the RISD Trustee Board meeting yesterday and walked away devastated about the budget cuts in our school district. At the same time, I am genuinely impressed with Tabitha Branum, her staff, and our board members. They are thoughtful, committed, and clearly care deeply about this district and our students.

The difficult budget decisions they're facing aren't due to overspending; they're the result of rising costs and inadequate state funding. Our schools are being asked to do more with less, and that's not sustainable.

What's frustrating is that the party in power in Austin continues to support policies that make things worse for schools. Policies my opponent voted for, like unfunded mandates and voucher programs that divert resources from public schools.

We can do better. I'm running because I believe in fully funding our public schools so our educators and leaders don't have to make these impossible choices. Our kids deserve better.

Texas AFT sues the state over baseless investigations into educators after the assassination of Charlie Kirk

“Somewhere and somehow, our state’s leaders lost their way. A few well-placed Texas politicians and bureaucrats think it is good for their careers to trample on educators’ free speech rights. They decided scoring a few cheap points was worth the unfair discipline, the doxing, and the death threats targeted at Texas teachers. Meanwhile, educators and their families are afraid that they’ll lose everything: their livelihoods, their reputations, and their very purpose for being, which is to impart critical thinking.”

“You don’t lose your constitutional rights when you decide to become a teacher—the Constitution, for it to have any meaning at all, has to work for all Americans, not just some. Teachers pour their heart and soul into their work with kids. They should be judged on that work, not some culture war that exploits horrific violence for political ends.”

Zach Herbert describes himself as a purpose-driven leader who focuses on solutions over partisanship. While a longtime Democrat, Zach emphasizes finding common ground and addressing the issues that matter most to Texans: affordability, healthcare access, and public education.

◆ Herbert (segment begins 56:02):

The other bill would be to tie teachers’ pay to inflation. At the very least, I don't see how both sides can't get on board with that. It just it needs to be something that we have to figure out how to how to fund, right? Like, let's throw our hats over the fence. Let's tie teachers pay to inflation, and then we'll figure it out. You know how to, how to get that money and make it I think that's, that might be the first thing he's talking about, freshman, freshman representative. I don't know. I might, I might be a little annoying.

Herbert wants business owners to “pay a percentage of your wages that you pay your employees into the health system so that they can all get Medicaid.”

◆ Herbert (segment begins 50:58):

Well, here's my idea. I don't know if it'll be the first bill, but from my perspective as a small business owner, here's what I've seen. Okay, just to back up a little bit, I'm a Democrat, mostly because of the fact that I think that if there is an easier route, if there's a selfish route, then I think people are going to take it, because I think we're all, we're all inherently selfish, okay? And, and that's, that's just who we are. I'm not. It's like the bias word. I think everybody says, Well, I'm not, you know, I'm not. No, we all are. Because if you really think about it, if the world goes to crap tomorrow, it's going to be me and my family. That's, I'm going to take them, you know, somewhere, and I'm going to defend them. It's I'm not going to go and save the world, right? I'm going to save my family. So as a small business owner, when I, when I hired my very first employee, I had a friend who also had a law firm, and he said to me, Hey, here, here's a secret. You should hire her as an independent contractor, and if you hire her as an independent contractor, you won't have to pay her any benefits, and you'll save a lot of money. And I think that that I was so glad that he told me that, because it, it made me realize that I never want to do that like I like that's against my values who I am. And so from day one, I've paid all of my employees full health benefits and full, you know, 401, K and all that stuff like but when you look at my profit loss statement, more than half of it goes to employee, employee, pay and benefits. It's a huge number, and I can see how it would be so tempting to take that pie chart down a little bit and put more money into my pocket. It would be very easy to do so, because that's what everybody does. Right? The guy who told me to hire as an independent contractor, well, now we haven't talked about health care yet, but Medicaid expansion in Texas needs to happen. And I think one of the avenues that we could take is we could make it so that business owners that pay people a salary pay into just like we do unemployment in franchise tax and to the workers comp system, pay a percentage of your wages that you pay your employees into the health system so that they can all get Medicaid. And so for instance, I'm going to use fake numbers if I pay $10,000 a month in health insurance benefits for my employees. Well, if it's a percentage of my of what I pay them, then I could probably save $9,000 by paying into the Medicaid system as a small business owner. So I would save money if I'm paying them full benefits by this Medicaid expansion. Save money to be able to hopefully pay him a living wage, or just to be selfish and be, you know, make more money as a business owner, whatever it may be. But I'm thinking about small and large businesses alike having to do that. If they do business in Texas, it would probably completely fund, you know, the health care that we need in Texas without even taking the billions of dollars that we're not taking right now in federal money for not expanding Medicaid in Texas. That's that's something that I'm pretty passionate about, because I think it would help everyone if they had access to health care no matter what, and if the businesses that they're they're employed by, are the first ones to start this program, then when you lose your job, you'd still have it, you'd go to you get another job you don't have to worry about. You know, waiting that period of time get your health benefits, or the enrollment period, or whatever that is. It's very complicated. Every time we meet about health insurance, I my eyes glaze over and I don't understand. And it's just it's more money every year for some stupid reason, and they pay for less every year too. Yeah. Yeah. Privatized health care. In the country when we were Marines, Tovar, we had socialized medicine, yeah, oh my God.

◆ Herbert (segment begins 42:49):

Well, I so I immediately started, because my wife was helping me at the very beginning, and so she's a teacher by trade, and now I kind of laugh. It's, it's over four years later, and you know, we can be driving somewhere and she'll say something that's just the nomenclature was not there. They I would come home from my last job and start to talk about what I did for that day, and her eyes just glaze over. She didn't understand anything I was saying. But now all the terminologies, everything, she understands it all because she's been working in this industry now for four years, and she knows she knows it. But I started with the I started with things like the settlements and medical records requesting. I taught her how to request medical records and and she was off to the races on requesting medical records, the very first official hire. So that was great because, you know, she was free, at least on the books, she was free. So it was, it was a great first hire, if you will. But the first real hire was my paralegal, and it was because I was very heavy on litigation cases, very light on pre litigation cases, and I couldn't get it all done in the day.

Herbert wants more restrictions on 2nd amendment rights but does not specify what that means beyond calling it “common-sense”. Herbert is endorsed by Moms Demand Action, the Bloomberg-backed gun grabbing group whose “common-sense” gun policies include red flag laws, restrictions on storage, banning assault weapons, restrictions on open carry, pressuring private businesses to restrict carry and sales, and opposing constitutional carry expansions. The group also wants to repeal Stand Your Ground Laws.

Zach Herbert describes himself as a purpose-driven leader who focuses on solutions over partisanship. While a longtime Democrat, Zach emphasizes finding common ground and addressing the issues that matter most to Texans: affordability, healthcare access, and public education.

I have a pretty unique perspective for a Democrat, maybe because I was raised with guns, and I was, I went hunting my whole life. My my Christmas present for my when I was eight was my first rifle and and I, my dad taught me the safety rules before the Marine Corps. Did you know never, never point a weapon at anything you don't intend to shoot. You remember that that Diddy? Right, Tovar, all those weapons. And then, so my dad taught me weapon safety. And then I go into the Marine Corps, and I and you get it really beat into your head, and you get in trouble if you, if you, they call it flagging somebody, if you accidentally pointed at somebody else, like it's very it's very serious. And I loved it, and I was so glad, because I was serving with Marines that had never touched a gun before, and so I was very glad for that, especially when we were doing live fire ranges, that was a lot of training just to be able to shoot a live round out of a out of a rifle, and there's no training anybody gets to purchase a gun here in Texas, there used to be, there used to be a concealed carry permit. You'd have to go to two days of classes for that. But there's no need to have that anymore. And so I have this. I have two recent experiences. One is purchasing a gun, which took 30 minutes and a background check and and they let me leave with a gun, right? And I, I think I, they handed me an iPad, and I checked a bunch of buttons. By the way, one of them was, Do you have any mental health problems that I checked no, right? And I was, I wanted to ask the guy, but he would probably think I was weird, you know what? If I checked, yes, would you? Would this do anything?

(segment begins 42:53): Driving is a privilege, and it's state specific, and the states are allowed to run it however they want. Now they have to follow the Constitution. They can't deny people a license because of, you know, unconstitutional grounds. But I really think that this whole getting a license thing should at least be as hard, if not harder, when it comes to purchasing a gun like it should be a little difficult. It should have some things that you've got to do at least a class to learn how to use it properly. Because it's not just school shootings that are killing our kids. It's guns that aren't locked up at home, guns that, you know, guns that kids are playing with, that their dad has, or it's dad, because he's never learned how to use a gun, but he wanted to buy one. These are, there's a lot of, I don't have the statistics outright, but there are a lot of people that die every year just because of accidental gun discharges

Distinction

The Moms Demand Action Gun Sense Candidate distinction is a program meant to signal to our more than 11 million supporters, volunteers, and gun safety voters across the country that, if elected, a candidate will govern with gun safety in mind. Those awarded the distinction have demonstrated that they will support stronger gun laws and advocate for safer communities if elected into office.

Multiple candidates in a race can receive the distinction, and just like common-sense gun safety, the distinction is non-partisan.

The Moms Demand Action Gun Sense Candidate distinction is not an endorsement from Everytown for Gun Safety Action Fund or its volunteer networks, and it should not be represented as such. Instead, it is a signal to our supporters, volunteers, and voters across the country that a candidate, if elected, will govern with gun safety in mind.

Candidate Questionnaire and Selection Process

The Gun Sense Candidate questionnaire is the foundation for evaluating a candidate's position on gun violence prevention. A candidate's record and public positions are also factors in evaluating a candidate's submitted questionnaire.

The questionnaire asks a candidate their positions on various evidence-based public safety policies shown to reduce gun violence and save lives.

Once questionnaires are submitted, candidates' questionnaires, records, and public positions will be reviewed on a rolling basis, and then candidates will be notified if they are awarded the Moms Demand Action Gun Sense Candidate distinction.

If you are a candidate seeking the opportunity to submit a Gun Sense Candidate questionnaire, please email gunsensecandidates@everytown.org.

Repeal Shoot First Laws

WHAT DOES IT SOLVE?

Shoot First, also known as Stand Your Ground, laws allow a person to shoot and kill another person in a public area even when there are clear and safe ways to retreat from a dangerous situation. These laws threaten public safety by encouraging armed vigilantism.

SHOOT FIRST LAWS ARE A LICENSE TO KILL
Report

Shoot First laws encourage avoidable escalation of violence, and they do not deter crime. Under traditional self-defense law, a person can use force to defend themselves anywhere. If they're outside their home, though, they can't use force that is likely to kill or seriously injure someone if there's a safe way to avoid it. These laws give people a license to shoot and kill in public, even if they started the confrontation and even when they can safely walk away from the danger. Shoot First laws are associated with increases in gun deaths¹ and injuries,² and disproportionately impact communities of color.³ Lawmakers should put the safety of their constituents first and repeal these dangerous laws in their states.

Require Permits to Carry Concealed Guns in Public

WHAT DOES IT SOLVE?

It is legal to carry a concealed handgun in public in all 50 states. States have traditionally required a person to have a permit to carry a loaded, concealed handgun in public. States should not allow the carry of concealed guns in public without one.

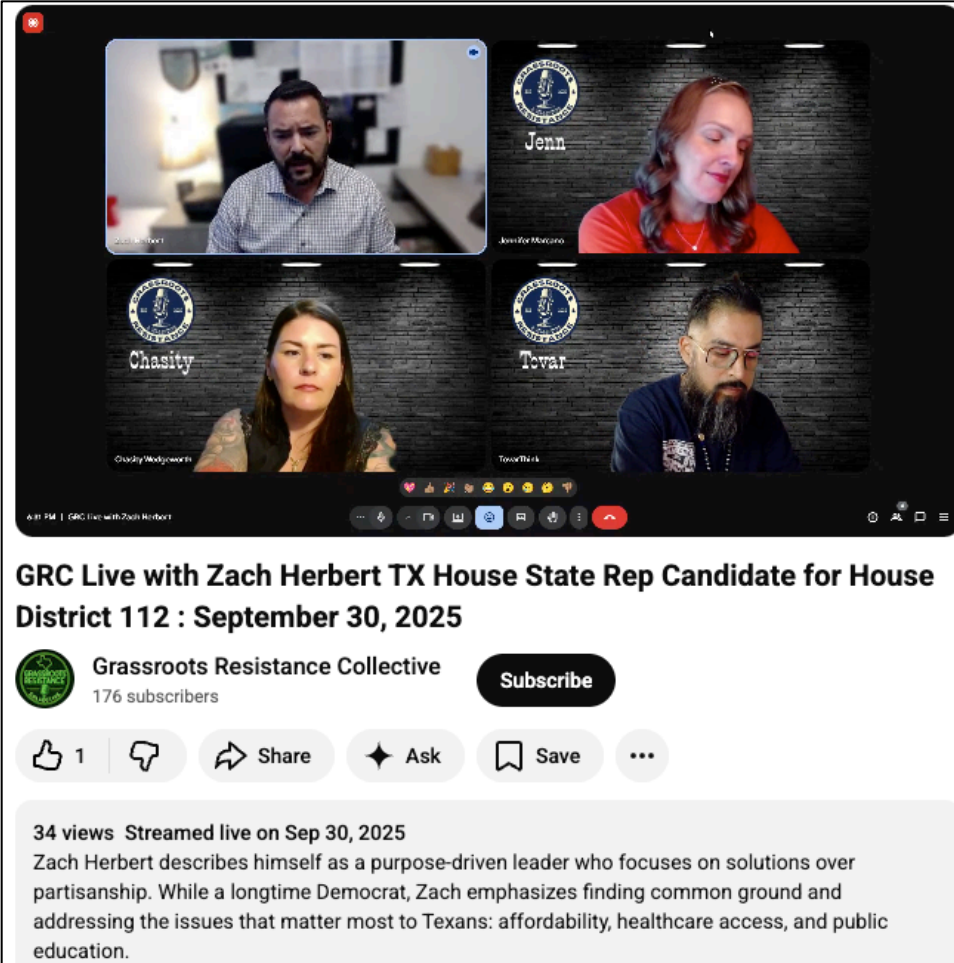

PERMITLESS

PERMIT AND NO

Report

Although standards and processes vary, permits ensure that certain core public safety standards are maintained, such as requiring that a person has passed a background check and completed firearm safety training before carrying a concealed gun in public. Many states also authorize permit issuers to deny permits to people who pose a danger to the public. These laws promote responsible gun ownership and ensure fundamental public safety standards are preserved when people carry concealed guns in public places.

◆ Herbert (segment begins 43:53):

it's so sad. It breaks my heart. I've got kids every time is locked up double and triple locked up in my, you know, in my home, because I really don't want them to have access to it. Dallas DA Creuzot Financially Supported by Soros

JONATHAN RICHIE - SENIOR REPORTER | DALLAS

NOV 13, 2022

Dallas County District Attorney John Creuzot's campaign was boosted across the finish line with the help of over $400,000 of support from far left-wing megadonor George Soros, according to recent campaign finance reports.

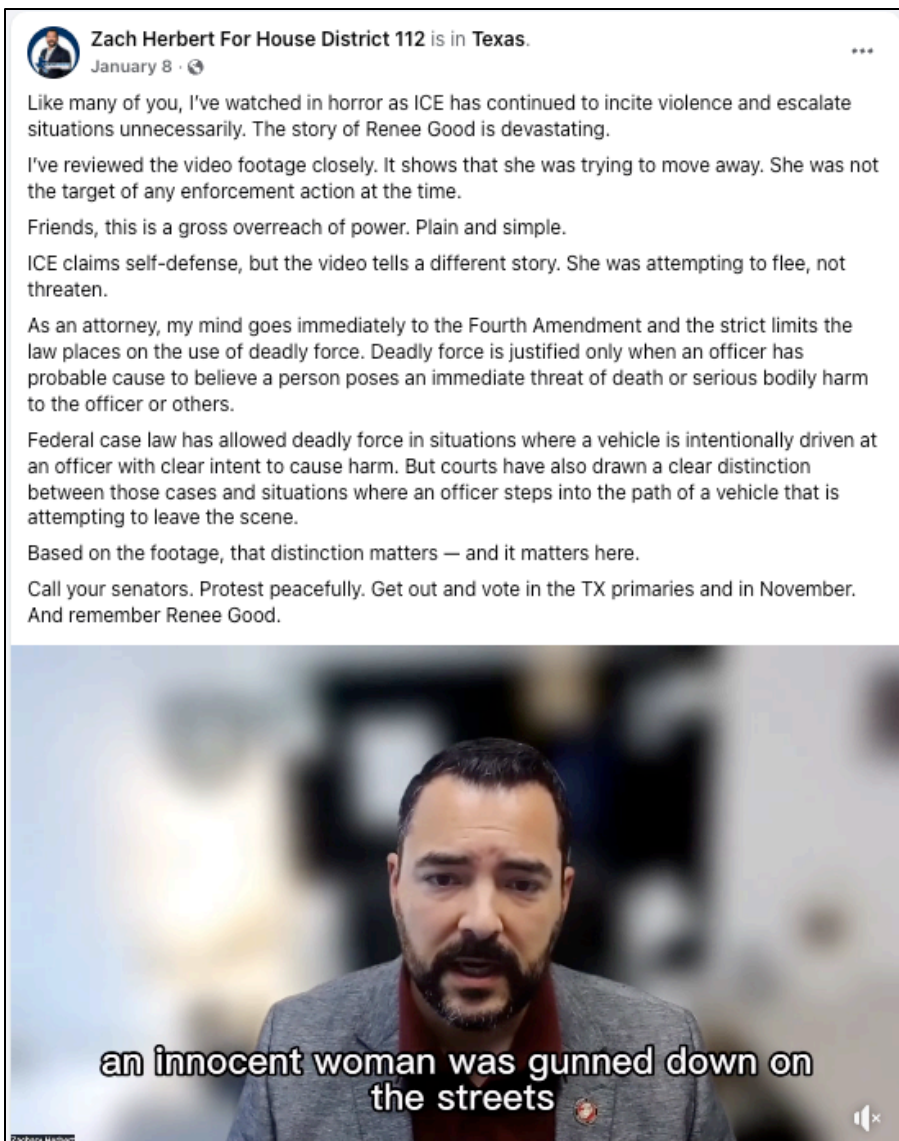

In the final campaign finance report released before election day, Creuzot noted three separate "in-kind" donations from the Texas Justice & Public Safety PAC in October alone.

The donations, totaling $408,219, covered the costs for "door-to-door canvassing, staff fees, travel fees," mailouts, advertising, and polling.

Texas Justice & Public Safety, based in Washington, D.C., received at least $1.75 million from George Soros in 2022, who is functionally their only donor. Soros has poured over $3.6 million into the endeavor throughout the organization's life.

Herbert even “liked” a comment calling for the abolishment of ICE.

◆ Herbert:

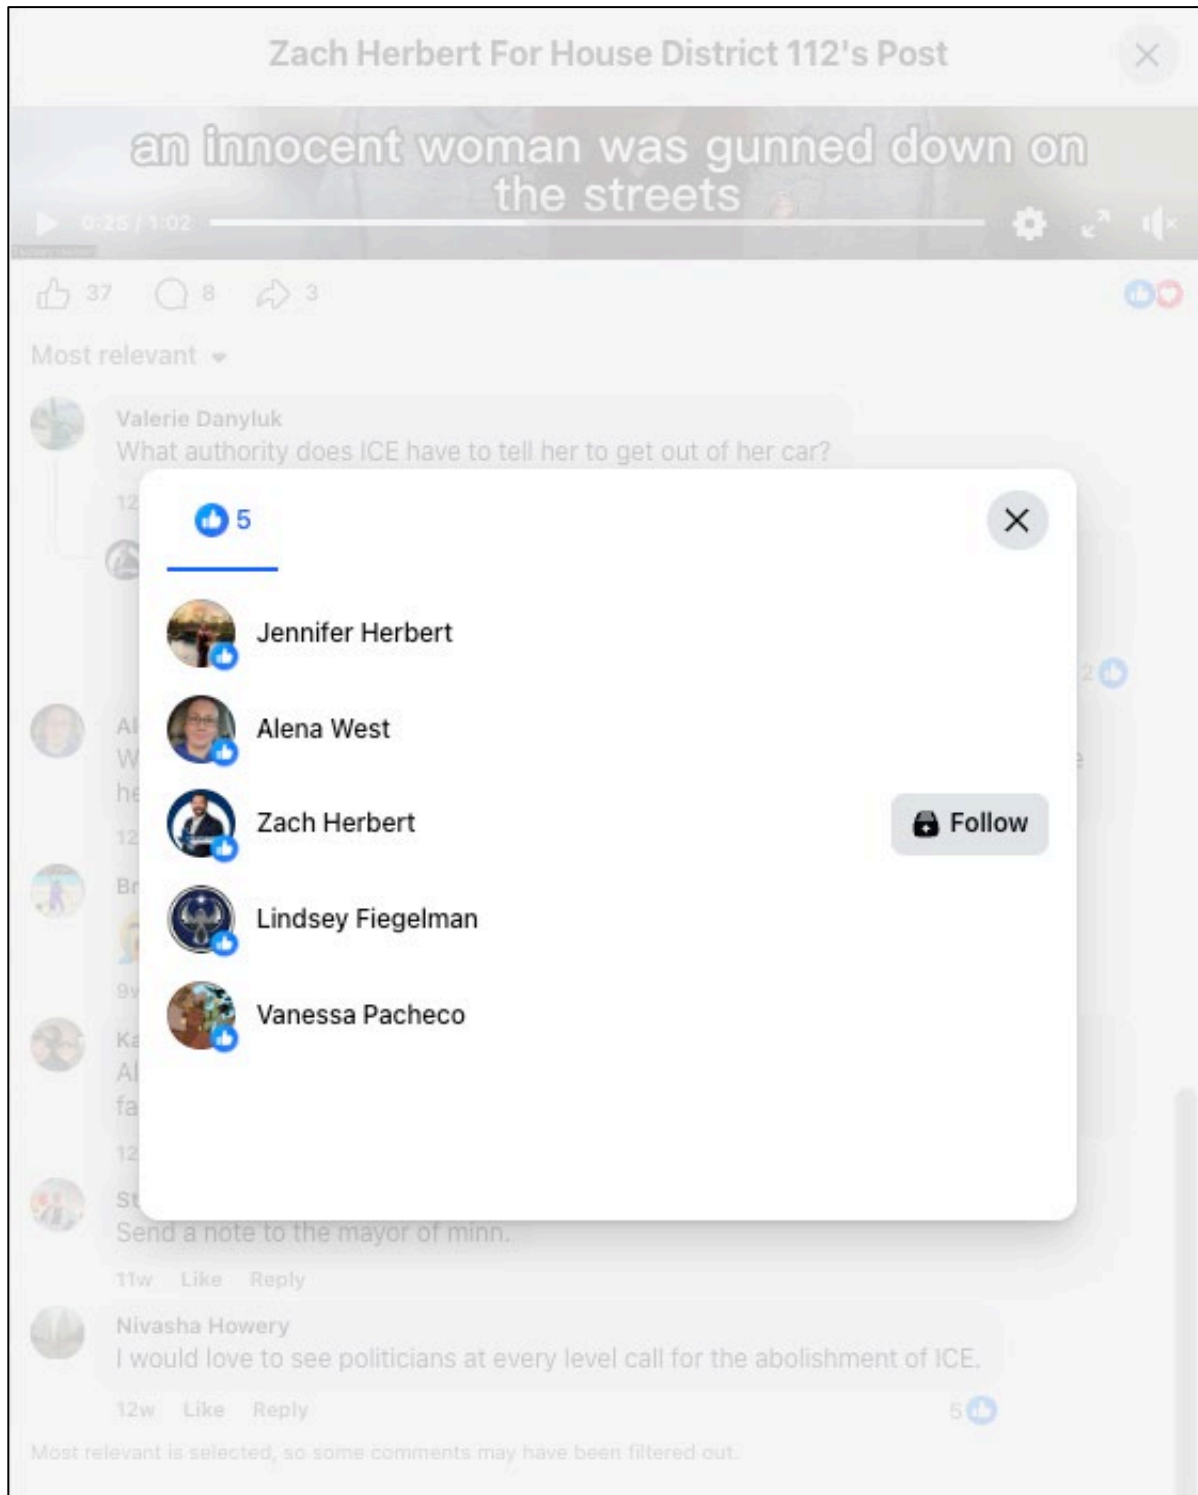

I wanted to talk about 37 year old Renee Nicole Goode, who was shot and killed by an ICE officer in South Minneapolis yesterday. I've watched the video footage and it shows that she was trying to move away. She was not the target of any enforcement action at the time. Ladies and gentlemen, this is a gross overreach of power, plain and simple. Ice claims self-defense, but the video clearly shows she was attempting to flee. Folks, this is part of a larger issue in this country. An innocent woman was gunned down on the streets, in the White House, DOJ, Homeland Security, they're already calling it justified. ICE agents have been given too much power. There is no oversight. There is no accountability. There's no obvious adequate training for these officers. They are causing the escalations to occur and then expecting everyone to just comply, and I am not standing for it. You shouldn't stand for it either. Get out and vote this primary. Get out and vote in November. Protest peacefully. Call your senators and representatives and be loud. And remember, Renee.

◆ Herbert (segment begins 45:20):

we've seen it work in other states like Colorado and New Mexico. We've seen it. We've seen it actually help those states with their tax revenue. You are right that I would say a majority of Texans are for legalizing marijuana, even the even the more conservative ones. And I, and I don't know exactly why it's not, except for, I have a feeling it's what we talked about with lobbies earlier, for sure, and there. And you guys probably know better than I do. Alcohol lobby keeping, keeping it illegal. I think, I think that's probably a huge thing, even though the studies have shown that it's safer and not as harmful as alcohol is. And I think everybody already knows, you take anybody off the street right now that medicinal marijuana has been proven to help patients that have chronic back pain, that have what is it? Cerebral Palsy? Doesn't it help with cerebral palsy as well? Let's see. I think, I think I want to, I want to legalize it for the tax revenue. I think it's a way to be able to fully fund our schools. Now a lot of people say, Well, we were supposed to do that with the lottery, right? And what happened there. And I think that's, you know, guys, we got a lot of excess in Austin, and we got a lot of people in power that want to keep that power, and they're going to do anything they can. And I don't think that, even if we are able to legalize marijuana, I don't think that we're going to be able to use those funds for good until we do an upset in the leadership that's down there right now. And I think that that comes with listening, like you said chastity earlier, to in voting, you know, with the with the issues, with the policies that the candidates are talking about. And, you know, it's that's why people probably aren't campaigning on it, because of the stigma, because there's still an older generation that thinks that you're Willie Nelson, if you smoke pot.

Stonewall Democrats of Dallas Strongly Condemn Anti-LGBTQ+ Driver's License Policy

The Stonewall Democrats of Dallas strongly condemn the recent anti-LGBTQ+ policies implemented by the Texas Department of Public Safety. The new policy, which prohibits transgender Texans from changing the sex listed on their driver's licenses, is a direct affront to the rights and dignity of our community.

This policy shift is a direct result of Texas Attorney General Ken Paxton's crusade against LGBTQ+ Texans. This change requires DPS employees to disregard valid court orders that facilitate the change of sex markers on transgender individuals' government records.

We firmly believe that all Texans deserve the right to live authentically and to have their gender identity recognized by their government. The Stonewall Democrats of Dallas stand united with LGBTQ+ Texans in the ongoing struggle for equality and respect.

◆ Herbert (segment begins 10:07):

you know, I talked about the military being diverse. It's very diverse. Not a lot of people think that when they think of especially Marines, I think we all look alike, right? We're all the jar head, square jaw, that sort of thing. But the Marines that I served with, like I said, all walks of life, in all different belief systems, too, right, and Democrat and Republican alike. And I saw a Marine Corps that was inclusive when I was when I was in, I saw a Marine Corps that one of the things that we would say to have already probably heard this, that we all believe green, right? And, and that was the marine ethos, is that we're, we're all, we're all in a brotherhood, or, you know, in a family, yeah. And when I was getting the, well, first of all, when I got in, don't ask, don't tell, was still a policy, and I had to sign Don't Ask, Don't Tell, paperwork, which was very interesting. And then one year after I got in, they repealed Don't Ask, Don't Tell. And so I'm thinking, we're taking steps forward. Look at us. The Marine Corps is doing great. In fact, there was a Marine that I served with that transitioned when she got out, and then she went back in on active duty as a female. She was a male, whatever she was in, and then she transitioned back as a female. The Marine Corps accepted her, and she has had this great career ahead of her, and she was, I mean, amazing journey, but they've kicked her out, she's she's been kicked out. And I feel like we take these steps forward, and then two steps back, seeing what I saw today, talking about how we're going to do away with any, anything that has inclusiveness. We're going to do away with anything that has whatever this woke thing is, they keep saying, you know, anything that has, even been a very dangerous one. Was even reporting, I think that he was talking about victims of sexual assault. We're going to do away with that too. It seemed that he was intoning, at least, if you didn't say it specifically. And it scares me that's not, that's not the Marine Corps that I was in. That's not the Marine Corps that I think a lot of our veterans are proud of. And I don't know what's going to happen next, but it's another scary thing.

Everybody already has those inherent bias, biases, maybe the portal, I don't really know, and, and that's, and that's the problem that we have, I think, in this, in this country as a whole, it's those, those people that think I don't have any biases, right? I'm I'm unbiased. I'm the one that's got all the answers, and

I don't need to listen to anyone else or their viewpoint, because I know the right way. I'm just going to put on my Red Hat and go, you know, put up the flag in my front yard and not listen. And that's and that's the problem. Is not listening, not having a conversation with everybody, going back to what you were talking about earlier, is being able to know R or D, just having conversations with your neighbors, with other people,

All part of the job? Probably doesn't bode well for his behavior in Austin. A new employee was welcomed to the Herbert Law Group by her boss twerking on her and posting the video on the law firm's YouTube.

Personal Injury Firm in Texas Does the Shiggy Challenge to Announce Their New Employee

https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=WehVW_rIAJg; video archived here

Herbert on his law firm website: “Our method of dealing with our clients is what we described as Old School. We meet with all of our clients. We take our clients’ calls – in fact most have our cell phone number!” Herbert on a podcast: “As a personal injury attorney...The longer you spend on a task, the more money we're losing... I'll be like, remember when I told you in your lit meeting this, well I don't remember if I told them that or not, but I know that I say the same thing in every meeting.”

- ◆ “Our method of dealing with our clients is what we described as Old School. We meet with all of our clients. We take our clients’ calls – in fact most have our cell phone number!”

The screenshot shows a website header with the HLG logo and navigation links: YOUR TEAM, HOW WE WORK, WHAT WE DO, FAQ, TESTIMONIALS, BLOG, CONTACT, and a search icon. A prominent orange 'CALL NOW' button is on the right. The main content area is titled 'OLD SCHOOL COMMUNICATION' and features the headline 'We talk to you directly.' Below this is a photograph of three staff members (two women and one man) wearing black t-shirts with the 'HERBERT LAW GROUP PLLC' logo. To the right of the photo, the text reads: 'Our method of dealing with our clients is what we described as Old School. We meet with all of our clients. We take our clients’ calls – in fact most have our cell phone number! No annoying extensions and getting passed from department to department. Getting to know you is important. This is how we make a plan, communicate the plan, and execute. HLG’s Marine Corps roots shape how we handle each and every case.'

CASEpeer CEO and Co-Founder, Gabriela Cubeiro, joins Zach Herbert, founder and CEO of Herbert Law Group, as part of our Expert Advice Webinar Series. The two discuss the importance of processes and delegation and how they can positively impact your firm's operations. Learn how Zach implements process-driven structure at his firm, why delegation is a valuable skill to him, and how he manages his firm as a business.

◆ Herbert (segment begins 5:16):

I like to say it this way, time is all we got. That's all we got. And even though we as personal injury attorneys are not directly selling our time, we That's all we got. Even though we're not billing or for our time, this is a professional service. And if it's not your time, it's the time of your support staff. And that's that's worth a lot too. I've had a problem with in the past. I've had a problem with people that have come over from the defense side. And the problem that I've come into play is people from the defense side, support staff and attorneys alike. They seem to want to spend a long time on each task, because it's it. That's how though they made money. But as a personal injury attorney, I like to tell those people when they come over, I say it's exactly the opposite here. The longer you spend on a task, the more money we're losing. You got to think it that way. So it's not like I want you to do everything really crappy and fast, but you have to have that little another Mindset set shift into it's all about time. And so because it's all about time, every time anybody in your entire firm does something, if it can be done faster or more efficiently, then that's money directly in the bank. So that's why it's so much so important.

◆ Herbert (segment begins 13:34):

I'll talk about the Depo preps that I do for every single one of my clients. And this is another, this is another example of if you're if you're going to do a volume practice, even if you're not going to do a volume practice, if you're going to do the same type of case over and over again, then you're going to say the same speech every time you're going to, you know you at least you'd be, need to be doing that. And if you can start writing down those speeches that you give those clients, or the frequently asked questions in some form, then you know that they're going to get the same information each time, and you have the added benefit of not having to remember all of these conversations. So by the time I get to you know mediation, my client on the other side of the table, I'll be like, remember when I told you in your lit meeting this, well, I don't remember if I told them that or not, but I know that I say the same thing in every meeting. So in the Depo prep, it became, oh, man, I was doing the same thing each time in the depot prep. So the whole process goes something like that this, I have a Calendly link, and we send a text. There's a task. Once it's moved into the deposition phase, the task is, send the Calendly link to the client. Client gets the link. They schedule a depot prep through Calendly. Now Calendly allows them to choose, do they want to do it in person, zoom, phone call, FaceTime, Skype, all of those are available to them. It's interesting. Know, most of the clients just say, Oh, just, you know, zoom or phone call.

Herbert: “I run a practice on small personal injury cases, mostly car wrecks. Some would call it a volume practice model. Some would say volume is bad. I say volume is great.”

◆ Herbert (segment begins 39:49):

I do a lot of things the opposite of what I have seen and what I've been told in many different areas of my life, not just my law firm, but it's kind of learning from other people's mistakes. Yes, I run a practice on small personal injury cases, mostly car wrecks. Some would call it a volume practice model. Some would say volume is bad. I say volume is great, and as long as we're giving a great product to each and every client, and I think that we are, and so I have heard different numbers thrown around, but what I keep ending up with is I keep ending up with around 50

Can these people just leave. Herbert is endorsed by Averie Bishop, the 2024 Democratic candidate for house district 112. Bishop is now an influencer who posted on March 2, 2026: “bringing back some socialism don't worry !...inhaling mamdani nyc air before flying back to my regularly scheduled deep red state to do my civic duty & flip Texas soon-ish”

Zach Herbert completed Ballotpedia's Candidate Connection survey in 2025. The survey questions appear in bold and are followed by Herbert's responses.

What characteristics or principles are most important for an elected official?	▼
Leadership. In the Marines I learned how to lead by example, with Honor. The most lasting ethos that I practice today is "Leaders eat Last." That means that the higher ranking Marines would ensure that in the line for food, they are making sure all the Marines eat before they do. That's how a leader in our government should act.

“I like to fight. I fought in the Marine Corps, and I fight for my clients now.” While Herbert has not claimed to be a combat veteran in his campaign for state representative, he seems to have no problems implying it to prospective clients.

Hey, Attorney Zach Herbert here, I wanted to talk about delay for a second. Delay is the best friend of any insurance company, and the reason that that is the best friend is because an insurance company's business model is very simple. It take more money in in premiums than we pay out. That's it, and you get a profit, and insurance companies pay people called adjusters, and their sole job is to deny claims or find a reason not to pay on claims. And delay is the best thing that they've got, because if they can make your case last longer, they know you're going to be frustrated and their money is going to sit in the bank. So that's why, when you hire an attorney, you don't want your case to sit. The longer it sits, the worse it is for you, both in your own mind, and also because, you know the insurance company is sitting there laughing and counting their money. So if you call me, I'll make sure that your case doesn't sit and it doesn't. There's no delay, which is always a better way of going. I like to fight. I fought in the Marine Corps, and I fight for my clients now. And if you need somebody to fight for you, you give me a call.

Herbert claims to be an advocate for Texas small businesses but is spending his campaign funds in China.

My journey has shaped what I stand for today. As a Theology major in college, I learned inclusiveness and compassion. In law school, I learned how to stand up for the powerless. In the Marines, I learned that true leadership is earned through example. As a father raising children in public schools, I learned the importance of great teachers. As a small business owner, I learned how tough it is to pay employees' benefits and keep the company afloat. As a homeowner in District 112, I learned how important it is to have a voice in Austin.

I believe small businesses should be prioritized over large corporations. I believe every small business should be able to afford to pay a living wage and full medical benefits for all Texas employees.

Herbert supports expanding gambling.

- ◆ “Any discussion of expanding gambling should be approached cautiously and transparently. If considered, it must include strong voter approval, clear consumer protections, and a guarantee that new revenue is dedicated to priorities like public education and property tax relief—not just general spending. Revenue alone should never outweigh the social and economic impacts on communities.”

 ELECTIONS 2026 | DEMOCRAT PRIMARY CANDIDATE Q&AS

Texas House District 112

Zach Herbert

The Dallas Morning News sent questionnaires to candidates who provided the answers included here. We limited each candidate to a 200 word count per question, but we did not edit answers in any way. These answers are provided here to allow candidates to speak directly to our readers.

– Would you consider expanding gambling to increase state revenue?

Zach Herbert:

Any discussion of expanding gambling should be approached cautiously and transparently. If considered, it must include strong voter approval, clear consumer protections, and a guarantee that new revenue is dedicated to priorities like public education and property tax relief—not just general spending. Revenue alone should never outweigh the social and economic impacts on communities.

Big news I'm excited to share.
Averie Bishop, former Democratic nominee for HD112 and former Miss Texas, is joining me for a special campaign fundraiser.
Averie knows this district, she knows this community, and I'm honored to have her support as we work together to flip HD112.

Attorney Zach, was very communicative throughout the whole process and helped me understand what was going on and the timeline was the way it was. We just recently closed our case, and I couldn't be happier with the outcome that he provided for us. I highly recommend!

About

Our Richardson, TX based boutique law firm is headed by Attorney Zach Herbert. Dallas personal injury accident lawyer Zach Herbert is supported by a compassionate team who are experts in handling Dallas car wrecks, truck wrecks, and all aspects of personal injuries.

Attorney Zach was born and raised in Dallas, TX. After graduating from Pepperdine University School of Law, Zach joined the United States Marine Corps.

After leaving the Marine Corps, Zach quickly established himself as a tenacious Texas personal injury trial attorney. He attended The Trial Lawyer's College in Dubois, Wyoming, where he trained with other like-minded trial attorneys for three weeks.

Herbert Law Group combines an ethos of "Old School Service" with state-of-the-art technology which allows us to provide the best service to our personal injury clients.

The ultimate goal of Zach Herbert is to provide unmatched personal service to every client. "When you go to a lawyer, he or she better know not only your name, but everything about you," says Zach Herbert. "That is what our specialty is – we want to know everything about our clients."

We focus on the three core values of Honesty, Honor, & Communication. You can trust that our personal injury law firm will fight relentlessly for you.

Our method of dealing with our clients is what we describe as Old School. We take our clients' calls. Most have our direct numbers.

We meet with all of our clients.

They need to know us just as we need to know them. How can we accurately describe our client's injuries even if we have read all the medical information, met with the treating doctors, AND heard exactly how our client feels – but not from them directly? Regardless of how car accidents happen, contact the personal injury lawyers of Herbert Law Group right now if you were in a wreck and were injured. Our law firm knows how to navigate the complicated insurance claims process, fight relentlessly until we get through, and get you back to where you were before the wreck happened. We have studied the data, we know how the system works, and we love to fight! If you need a Dallas personal injury attorney, we are standing by to help.

Honor. Fairness. Texas.

My name is Zach Herbert. I'm a husband, father, Marine Corps veteran, and personal injury trial lawyer. For most of my career, I've stood in courtrooms across Texas fighting for everyday people against the biggest insurance companies and corporations. Before that, I wore the uniform of a United States Marine, where I learned discipline, duty, and that honor is more than a word—it's a way of life. Today, I'm running for the Texas House to take that same fight for fairness to Austin.

Honor. Fairness. Texas.

My journey has shaped what I stand for today. As a Theology major in college, I learned inclusiveness and compassion. In law school, I learned how to stand up for the powerless. In the Marines, I learned that true leadership is earned through example. As a father raising children in public schools, I learned the importance of great teachers. As a small business owner, I learned how tough it is to pay employees' benefits and keep the company afloat. As a homeowner in District 112, I learned how important it is to have a voice in Austin.

– Education

I believe our Teachers are grossly underpaid and should be rewarded for their hard work. Good Teachers should be paid a good salary, and great Teachers should be rewarded in kind.

I believe in Pre-K for all Texans.

– Healthcare

I believe in increasing access to healthcare and expanding Medicaid, so that no Texan is left without lifesaving care merely because they cannot afford it.

– Worker's Rights

I believe that the minimum wage should be increased to a livable wage, and that any Texan who works a full-time job should be able to make ends meet.

– Women's Rights

I believe that women should have the unequivocal right to make medical decisions for their own bodies.

I believe in protecting women's access to the ballot box and oppose any legislation akin to the SAVE Act.

– Local Control

I believe in local Democracy, and the Texas Legislature should not preempt the decisions communities make for their respective jurisdictions.

– Small Businesses

I believe small businesses should be prioritized over large corporations. I believe every small business should be able to afford to pay a living wage and full medical benefits for all Texas employees.

– Gun Safety

I believe in the basic right to bear arms. I believe that guns are inherently dangerous, and common-sense gun safety measures should be implemented to keep guns out of the hands of criminals and others deemed dangerous to themselves.

– Equity/Social Justice

I believe that diversity is what makes us Texans, and all Texans are equally deserving of dignity, respect, inclusion, and equitable treatment. I will oppose any legislation that infringes on the rights of the few, and promote equity and ensure that Texans of all backgrounds are treated with dignity and respect.

“There is no better friend,
no worse enemy than a U.S. Marine.”

– GENERAL JAMES MATTIS

That famous quote about Marines is the best way to describe how Zach Herbert, the Car Crash Captain, represents his clients against insurance companies.

Zach got his start as a Marine lawyer. He didn't enlist as an 18-year-old bent on seeing the world though. Instead, he took a different route where he finished law school before joining.

As soon as he passed the bar in Texas, he shipped out to Quantico, Virginia for Officer Candidate School. The day before he left, his wife let him know they were expecting their first child.

CALL NOW

OFFICER CANDIDATE SCHOOL

OCS

OCS is a rigorous 10-week program where you are put through the wringer to see if you have what it takes. Unlike boot camp, where you really have to mess up to get kicked out, you can actually quit or be expelled if you're not good enough. With the knowledge that his son was on the way, Zach had the motivation to not only get through but to excel.

Graduating OCS and commissioned as a 2nd Lieutenant, it was off to The Basic School where Zach learned how to fight. Hand-to-hand combat, digging fox holes, night stalking... it was awesome! By December of that year, Zach had a newborn son, and he was ready to start training for his actual job in the Marine Corps. He headed to Naval Justice School in Newport, Rhode Island for another 10 weeks learning how to be a Judge Advocate, in other words, a Marine Lawyer.

Judge Advocate

Upon graduation, Zach was a 1st Lieutenant and an official Judge Advocate, and he had his first assignment as a criminal defense lawyer. He was later promoted to Captain.

The Courtroom

When a member of the US Marine Corps, or the US Navy is accused of a crime, they go through the Court Martial system. It was there that Zach learned the processes and how to try a case to a jury. It was a different kind of fighting that he learned in his training. This was more of a mental fight. Zach had to think on his feet, change tactics while connecting with the jury.

Overall, he fell in love with the courtroom.

Texas has Always been Home.

It's here, in the Dallas area, that Zach wanted to raise his family. So, when his obligation was up, his family packed their bags and returned to the Lone Star State.

SEND ZACH A MESSAGE

Zach Wanted to Fight for People that were Injured.

Criminal defense was great but Zach wanted to stay in the courtroom. Fighting against the corporate man (insurance companies) was the next challenge for Zach. Zach became known as the Car Crash Captain, as he was a Captain in the Marine Corps, and tried and won many car crash cases after he left the Corps.

By 2017 it was time to forge forth on his own. He swung open the doors to Herbert Law Group, and he has been trying cases ever since with one goal in mind: focus on customer service no matter what. His nickname, Car Crash Captain, means that he uses his fighting Marine Corps courtroom skills to make sure his clients get every dollar they deserve from the insurance companies.

Meet Zach

Zach has always loved technology. When he was 10 years old, he built his first computer, an Intel 386. He learned to program in Basic, and even took elective networking classes in high school.

After graduating from Law School, Zach went to the United States Marine Corps and served a tour as a Criminal Defense Counsel in Camp Lejeune, North Carolina. He found his love for the courtroom there, and he continued trying cases at one of the largest personal injury firms in Dallas after leaving the military. He currently runs a Personal Injury firm in Dallas.

After starting his firm, Zach started taking MBA classes part-time at Pepperdine Graziadio School of Business. He used every project in every class to enhance, streamline, and grow his firm. Zach earned his degree in 2019 and continues to seek out new and innovative tech solutions to assist lawyers in improving their work/life balance and overall sanity.

BALLOTPEDIA CANDIDATE CONNECTION

CANDIDATE CONNECTION

Zach Herbert completed Ballotpedia's Candidate Connection survey in 2025. The survey questions appear in bold and are followed by Herbert's responses.

Who are you? Tell us about yourself.	▼
My name is Zach Herbert. I'm a husband, father, Marine Corps veteran, and personal injury trial lawyer. For most of my career, I've stood in courtrooms across Texas fighting for everyday people against the biggest insurance companies and corporations. Before that, I wore the uniform of a United States Marine, where I learned discipline, duty, and that honor is more than a word—it's a way of life. Today, I'm running for the Texas House to take that same fight for fairness to Austin.
Please list below 3 key messages of your campaign. What are the main points you want voters to remember about your goals for your time in office?	▼
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • As a Theology major in college, I learned inclusiveness and compassion. I believe that all Texans deserve dignity, respect, inclusion, and equitable treatment. • In law school, I learned how to stand up for the powerless. They aren't listening to us in Austin. They aren't listening to School Districts. They aren't listening to city leaders. They aren't listening to parents. They are only listening to big businesses and billionaires. We need a voice in Austin that is uniquely our voice, not a rubber stamp. • In the Marines, I learned that true leadership is earned through example. I have lived in this District for over 10 years. I own a small business here, and all four of my children attend public schools here. The people of 112 need true representation down in Austin, someone who understands how hard it is to keep it all together at work, home and everywhere else.
What areas of public policy are you personally passionate about?	▼
I am passionate about Education, making sure our kids are getting the best education they can, but fully funding our schools and paying our teachers a fair wage. I am passionate about Small Businesses, making sure that they are protected, and can afford to pay a living wage to their employees, and can afford to pay full benefits to all employees. I am passionate about Healthcare, expanding Medicaid to all Texans, and making sure no Texan is left without lifesaving care merely because they can't afford it.
What characteristics or principles are most important for an elected official?	▼
Leadership. In the Marines I learned how to lead by example, with Honor. The most lasting ethos that I practice today is "Leaders eat Last." That means that the higher ranking Marines would ensure that in the line for food, they are making sure all the Marines eat before they do. That's how a leader in our government should act.
What organizations or individuals have endorsed your campaign?	▼
Averie Bishop
What is an accomplishment that you are proud of?	▼ I'm proud of my marriage of over 20 years to my best friend and soulmate, Jennifer. We have had many adventures, and we are an amazing team.

DALLAS MORNING NEWS DEMOCRAT PRIMARY CANDIDATE Q&AS

 ELECTIONS 2026 | DEMOCRAT PRIMARY CANDIDATE Q&AS

Texas House District 112

Zach Herbert

The Dallas Morning News sent questionnaires to candidates who provided the answers included here. We limited each candidate to a 200 word count per question, but we did not edit answers in any way. These answers are provided here to allow candidates to speak directly to our readers.

– Length of residence in district:

Zach Herbert:

12 years

– Office sought:

Zach Herbert:

State Representative House District 112

– What political leader do you most admire and why?

Zach Herbert:

Barak Obama, I was always impressed with his intelligent and calm demeanor. He was the President while I was a Marine, and I voted for him while I was still in Law School. He inspired me then and he still inspires me now.

– Name as it appears on ballot:

Zach Herbert:

Zach Herbert

– Campaign website and social media:

Zach Herbert:

zach4texas.com

facebook.com/zach4texas

instagram/zach4texas

x: @zach4texas

tiktok: @zach4texas

– If elected, what will be your top three priorities?

Zach Herbert:

My top priorities are education, affordability, and workers' rights. I will fight to fully fund public schools and oppose policies that divert resources away from classrooms. I will work to lower everyday costs like housing, property taxes, and insurance so families can stay in the communities they call home. And I will stand up for workers by supporting fair wages, safe workplaces, and the right to be treated with dignity on the job.

– Occupation/main source of income:

Zach Herbert:

Personal Injury Trial Attorney, owner of Herbert Law Group

– What are the most significant long-term challenges facing your district and how will you address them?

Zach Herbert:

One of the most significant long-term challenges facing our district is the continued erosion of local control. Too often, Austin lawmakers impose one-size-fits-all mandates that limit the ability of local governments to respond to the unique needs of their communities. Decisions about zoning, public safety, infrastructure, and taxation are best made by the people closest to those issues.

The same concern applies to public education. Our public schools are facing growing pressure from underfunding and state policies that divert resources away from neighborhood classrooms. Voucher programs risk draining already limited funds, making it harder for public schools to attract teachers, reduce class sizes, and provide students with the education they deserve.

I will work to protect local decision-making, defend public education funding, and push back against unfunded mandates from the state. Strong communities and strong schools are essential to the long-term success of our district, and both depend on empowering local leaders—not sidelining them.

– Education (include all degrees):

Zach Herbert:

BA, Theology & Business Administration, Southern Nazarene University 2006

JD, Pepperdine, 2009

MBA, Pepperdine, 2019

– Texas has a powerful economy. What steps do you advocate to increase the state’s economic power?

Zach Herbert:

Texas’ strong economy is driven by hard work, innovation, and a pro-business environment. To strengthen it, I support investing in workforce development so employers can find skilled workers, modernizing infrastructure like transportation, water, broadband, and the power grid, and maintaining a fair, predictable business climate that supports small businesses and entrepreneurs. Economic growth should be broad-based, competitive, and benefit every region of the state—not just a few large players.

– Previous public offices sought or held:

Zach Herbert:

None

– Texans are increasingly concerned about affordability, from housing to groceries. How can the Legislature effectively address this concern?

Zach Herbert:

Affordability starts with lowering everyday costs for working families. The Legislature should invest in affordable housing, curb rising property taxes, and crack down on price gouging and anti-competitive practices that drive up the cost of groceries, insurance, and utilities. We should also raise wages and protect workers so Texans can keep more of what they earn and afford to live in the communities they serve.

– Have you ever been arrested or been a defendant in any criminal proceedings? If so, please explain.

Zach Herbert:

No

– What criteria should lawmakers use to assess if the newly created private school education savings account program is improving students' educational outcomes?

Zach Herbert:

Lawmakers should judge the program by whether it actually improves student outcomes—not ideology. That means requiring clear, transparent data on academic performance, graduation rates, and long-term success, while measuring whether public schools are being harmed by lost funding. Any program that lacks accountability, oversight, or measurable improvement for the majority of Texas students should be reevaluated or ended.

- In the last session, the Legislature passed SB 840 to make it easier to build housing on underutilized commercial land. What do you think of the bill? What else could lawmakers do to encourage housing for moderate- and middle-income Texans?

Zach Herbert:

SB 840 is a positive step toward increasing housing supply by making it easier to repurpose underutilized commercial land. But supply alone isn't enough. Lawmakers should also support local zoning flexibility, invest in infrastructure that supports new housing, and expand incentives for developers to build housing affordable to moderate- and middle-income families. We must focus on smart, community-driven growth that keeps housing within reach for working Texans.

- Other than divorce, have you ever been involved in any civil lawsuits or have you ever declared personal or professional bankruptcy? If so, please explain.

Zach Herbert:

No

– How do you think the president’s executive order to reclassify marijuana as a Schedule III drug will affect THC regulation in Texas?

Zach Herbert:

For Texas, the federal change alone won’t override our state’s current laws, which still classify marijuana as illegal for recreational use and tightly limit medical use. What it could do is influence conversations about regulation and research here, possibly shaping future state policy debates on medical THC products.

– Why should voters choose you over your opponent(s)?

Zach Herbert:

I am focused on education and affordability in my district. I am fully invested here. I have four children in public schools, I own a business here in Richardson, and I've lived here for over a decade. My legal and military background has prepared me for a leadership role in government, and I'm fully committed to representing the residents of HD 112, not corporate or special-interest lobbyists.

– Should Texas engage in mid-decennial redistricting?

Zach Herbert:

No.

– How should Texas improve school funding? Did HB3 go far enough? What does the next chapter of Texas education look like?

Zach Herbert:

Texas must fix school funding by making it adequate, predictable, and inflation-proof. HB 3 was a start, but it didn't go far enough—districts are still struggling with rising costs, teacher shortages, and unfunded mandates. The next chapter should raise and index the basic allotment, fully fund special education, and invest in teachers so that strong public schools remain the foundation of opportunity for every Texas student.

– Should Texas expand Medicaid eligibility? Why or why not?

Zach Herbert:

Yes. Texas should expand Medicaid eligibility because it would bring federal dollars home, lower uncompensated care costs, expand access to preventive and mental health care, and strengthen rural hospitals. Expansion helps working families who fall in the coverage gap and makes health care more affordable without raising taxes on Texans.

– Would you consider expanding gambling to increase state revenue?

Zach Herbert:

Any discussion of expanding gambling should be approached cautiously and transparently. If considered, it must include strong voter approval, clear consumer protections, and a guarantee that new revenue is dedicated to priorities like public education and property tax relief—not just general spending. Revenue alone should never outweigh the social and economic impacts on communities.

STATE BAR OF TEXAS

Office of the Chief Disciplinary Counsel

March 12, 2018

Re: Mr. Zachary David Herbert, State Bar Number 24069908

To Whom It May Concern:

This is to certify that Mr. Zachary David Herbert was licensed to practice law in Texas on November 06, 2009, and is an active member in good standing with the State Bar of Texas. "Good standing" means that the attorney is current on payment of Bar dues; has met Minimum Continuing Legal Education requirements; and is not presently under either administrative or disciplinary suspension from the practice of law.

This certification expires 30 days from the date, unless sooner revoked or rendered invalid by operation of rule or law.

Sincerely,

Linda A. Acevedo

Admission on Motion/Reciprocity

In the Supreme Court of the State of Oklahoma – In Re: Application of Zachary David Herbert pc

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF OKLAHOMA

In re: Application of Zachary David Herbert, 7413 Vineyard Trail, Garland, TX 75044, for Admission to the Practice of Law on Motion pursuant to Rule Two of the Rules Governing Admission to the Practice of Law in the State of Oklahoma.

ORIGINAL

ORDER

¶1 Zachary David Herbert has filed an application for admission to the practice of law in the State of Oklahoma pursuant to Rule Two of the Rules Governing Admission to the Practice of Law in the State of Oklahoma (RGAP), 5 O.S. Supp. 2014, ch. 1, app. 5. The Board of Bar Examiners of the State of Oklahoma filed its Report and Recommendation finding that Zachary David Herbert should be admitted to the practice of law in the Oklahoma Supreme Court and all inferior courts of the State of Oklahoma.

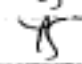

¶2 From this Court's review of the Board of Bar Examiners' Report and Recommendation and attached documents, this Court finds that the applicant, Zachary David Herbert, has met all the requirements for admission on motion to the practice of law in the Oklahoma Supreme Court and all inferior courts of the State of Oklahoma under Rule Two of the RGAP.

¶3 It is therefore ordered that Zachary David Herbert be admitted to the practice of law in the Oklahoma Supreme Court and all inferior courts upon taking the oath required by Rule One of the RGAP and signing the Roll of Attorneys in the office of the Clerk of this Court.

¶4 DONE BY ORDER OF THE SUPREME COURT IN CONFERENCE on April 16, 2018.
